LINDBERGHS COME DOWN IN DENSE FOG

Land in Kurile Islands After Hitting Inpenetrable Fog

JAPANESE ANXIOUS

Crowds Await Fliers at Nemuro; Fete Planned

TOKYO, Aug. 19.—Fog over the Kuriles islands interrupted the flight of Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh from Petropavlovsk to Nemuro, Japan, at 4:26 p. m., today (3:26 a. m., E. S. T.). They came down at Muroton bay, in the Kuriles, after being in the air since 10:45 a. m., when they took off from Avatchu bay, Kamchatka.

Engine trouble forced the famous couple down at that point shortly after their departure from Petropavlovsk, but they took off again two hours later.

The bureau of communications in Tokyo picked up a message from Mrs. Lindbergh at 4:18 p. m., saying that the plane had been forced to turn back by an impenetrable fog. Eight minutes later another message saying that the plane had landed in Muroton bay was received.

Colonel Lindbergh earlier in the day had wirelessed to Tokyo for permission to land in the Kuriles in case of necessity. His request was granted.

As soon as word spread about Nemuro and the surrounding territoty that the Lindberghs had taken off from Petropavlovsk a picturesque crowd began to gather along the shore of the harbor, eagerly scanning the northern sky for the rockets announcing the approach of the visitors. Although they were not due till late afternoon.

The places of honor near the triumphal arch of greenery and flowers erected near the landing stage were held by the mayor's committee, government representatives and 1,500 school children. Most of the crowd were dressed in the traditional Japanese kimona, western attire being the exception at this far northern tip of the empire.

SPEECH PREPARED

Kimona-clad geisha girls, who will dance for the flyers, mingled in the smiling crowd surrounding the mayor who from time to time studied his speech of welcome. The speech, containing 270 words, was in English and the mayor rehearsed the unfamiliar language repeatedly, with the aid of Captain Swift, language-officer from the American embassy in Tokyo, and Jerome Davis, agent of the Standard Oil Company.

From almost every building in Nemuro waved the flag of the rising sun and that of the stars and stripes. Nemuro was determined to leave nothing undone to make what was perhaps the greatest event of its history a memorable one.

News of the approach of the Lindberghs created a boom in the little city, which normally has a population of 5,000. Today that number had been swollen by many thousands. Taxicab and hotel prices soared, rooms bringing twenty dollars per day, with six guests to a room.

AUTOS COLLIDE ON N. COURT-ST

Sam Stout, Pleasant-st, escaped injury when a Ford coupe which he was driving and a Chevrolet coupe, driven by an out-of-town man, collided in front of the Shell Filling Station, N. Court-st, about 10 a. m., Wednesday.

Stout was turning off Court-st to the filling station when the Chevrolet collided. Both drivers escaped unhurt.

A number of melons in the rear of the Ford coupe were broken. Neither of the cars was badly damaged.

COMMISSIONERS OF JURY REAPPOINTED

Word has been received by George E. Roth, N. Scioto-st, that his cousin, Mrs Anna L. McConnaughauy, of Rockport, Mass., had died Aug. 12 and funeral services were held Aug. 14.

Trisect 5 Ways

George H. Hurd (above), a salesman of Brighton, Mass., claims to have trisected an angle five different ways, incidentally going President J. J. O'Callaghan, of Duquesne University, Pittsburgh, four better. Hurd, who has had only a high school education, declares his method is the only true one. Solution of the problem had been believed impossible for 2,500 years until President O'Callaghan recently announced his ability to trisect an angle one way.

PINCHOT ASKS AID FOR NEEDY

Special Session of Congress Requested By Pennsylvania Governor.

HARRISBURGH, Aug. 19—Gov. Gifford Pinchot today urged President Herbert Hoover to call a special session of Congress to provide federal help for the unemployed. Copies of the letter to the president in which Gov. Pinchot outlined his stand were made public here.

The letter to the president was accompanied by a report on conditions as they now exist in Pennsylvania.

"A situation like this, in a state like Pennsylvania, leads many to believe that the present emergency is as vital to the people as the great war," the governor wrote.

The Pennsylvania executive reminded the president that the latter had asked for congressional appropriation "for the relief of the needy in distant parts of the world, and, having obtained them, had supervised their expenditure."

YELLOWBUD FAIR TO BE THIS WEEK

Yellowbud's big day and night fair, an annual event, will be held at the fairgrounds there beginning Thursday and continuing through Sunday. The big event will open Thursday at 6 p. m., with running races.

Some of the features of the fair will be horse and pony races each evening, a parachute jump each evening at 6 p. m., airplanes with night flying, boxing with three four-round bouts each evening in an open air arena, recreation ball, baseball, clay target shooting, dancing, music both vocal and orchestra, concessions and amusements. A fish fry will be held every day of the fair.

MRS. LAFOLLETTE GOES BACK HOME

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—The body of the mother of their illustrious senator and of their governor is going back to the people of Wisconsin today.

Mrs. Belle Case LaFollette, political counselor for her late husband, "Fighting Bob," who is accredited with founding the progressive movement which has held great power in recent congresses, died last night at Georgetown University hospital after she underwent an operation Monday for an intestinal disorder.

Death was not altogether unexpected for Dr. Walter M Yater, the attending physician, had asked that Mrs. LaFollette's children be summoned here. He feared she would not survive the operation because of her age.

FILIBUSTERS LAND IN CUBA

Report American Negroes To Take Part in Uprising Against Machado.

HAVANA, Aug. 19—Reports that rebel expeditionary forces had landed in Oriente province from the United States stirred Havana citizens to intense excitement today.

News of the landing of rebel reinforcements reached Havana through the strict sensorship enforced by the Cuban government and led many to believe that President Machado was not sailing so smoothly as his communigues had indicated.

The president was reported still in Santa Clara province where it was rumored that government forces had lost 180 men in an engagement with rebel troops.

The expedition was said to have landed at Jibara. Oriente, from two schooners with seven machine guns and 8,000,000 rounds of ammunition one of the schooners flew the German flag and the other, the Norwegian. Among the rebels landing were said to have been a number of American negroes.

The expedition was believed here to be the same which ran afoul of the United States coast guard off the New Jersey coast two weeks ago.

JOHN BLAINE DIES

Funeral services will be held Thursday at 2 p. m., at Mt. Sterling for John Blaine, aged 77, who died Tuesday at his farm home near Derby. Mr. Blaine, a very well-known man, was a resident of Mt. Sterling but resided near Derby during the summers. Interment will be in Mt. Sterling cemetery.

Surviving are the widow, Mrs. Belle Crabbe Blaine, a son and a daughter.

KINGSTON PLANS BOY, DOG PARADE

Kingston council and the merchants of the village have definitely decided not to sponsor a street fair this year and in order to provide some attraction and stir up interest in the community in the way of a homecoming, it is proposed that the merchants of the town put on a Ross-co boy and dog parade.

Prizes will be awarded by the merchants and it is pointed out that this form of entertainment does not "skin" anyone like games of chance.

ROAD PROBERS HEAR COOPER, WAID, SILVER

Question Former State Officials Concerning 'Political' Deal

STILL INVESTIGATE

$1,100 Rental of Buiding Is Defended

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 19.—Sputtering and sizzling like a firecracker, the state senate's investigation of the highway department reopened today with the committee in possession of a flat denial that former Governor Myers Y. Cooper and his associates "played politics" in buying a site for a highway garage at Troy, O.

State Senator David P. Lorbach of Cincinnati, the Democratic leader of the probe, openly inferred at a hearing late yesterday that the purchase of a garage site and building from M. T. Dilts of Troy was a political transaction.

Former Governor Cooper and two of his cabinet members, former Finance Director Harry D. Silver and former Highway Director Robert N. Waid, were called to tell their own stories of the deal and explain a letter written to the former governor by a Troy attorney.

DENY 'POLITICS'

All testified "politics" had nothing to do with the purchase.

A photostatic copy of a letter from Attorney F. C. Goodrich, urging the governor to use his influence to get the board of cotrol to buy the Troy property, pointing out that it would be advantageous in his campaign for re-election, was produced at the hearing.

The $8,750 paid for the site and the building was excessive. Lorbach hinted to members of the committee during the questioning.

Asserting that he remembered there had been some dispute between Dilts and the state board of control, Cooper said he had no recollection of receiving a letter from Goodrich.

Dilts personally testified that Cooper was "under no obligation to me." Reinforcing this testimony, Goodrich declared that citizens of Troy were criticizing the Cooper administration for its failure to act on the purchase of the site.

Silver also testified, adding to the denials that the transaction was "political."

He defended the board of control, of which he was chairman, for paying $1,100 as rental for the building, saying the board was "under moral obligation" to pay for the use of the property during the months while the deal was pending. He said the deal was a good one for the state.

Live News Of Pickaway-co's Rural Schools

The opening day for the rural schools is left to the discreation of the local boards of education. One township favors Aug. 31 as the beginning of the term but major part of the county schools will open the first week in September as usual.

* * *

Owing to the uncertainty of finances, schools will operate on an eight months basis, which is the statutory requirement in the state. Should the money be available the term may be extended to nine months

* * *

The county superintendents of southeastern Ohio met in Athens, Monday, Aug. 17, and formed an organization to promote welfare of our schools. Superintendent E. O. McCowen of Scioto-co was elected president and W. H. Webb of Washington-co secretary. The question of state aid for weak school districts was discussed at length. At this time Pickaway-co only has two districts requiring state aid.

* * *

The next and final teachers' examination for this school year will be held at the Court House in Circleville on Friday, Aug. 28, 1931, beginning at eight a. m. All certificates must be filed for record in the office of the county superintendent before the opening of the school term.

* * *

Superintendent E J. Arnold of Bremen, O., has been employed as superintendent of the Nelsonville, O., schools.

* * *

In order to participate in the educational equalization fund commonly called state aid, Muhlenberg-twp will be required to vote a continuance of the 3-mill levy now in force. The local board of education passed a resolution at its last meeting authorizing the board of elections to place the proposition on the ballot at the November election. The levy should be continued this year to guarantee the required eight months of school next year.

TWO LINKED IN SHOOTING CASE

Prominent Men Disclosed Unless Girl is Taken From Jail, She Says.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19—Two other prominent New Jersey men may be drawn into the scandal arising from the shooting of State Senator Roy T. Yates today, as a result of the threat hurled by his lovenest sweetheart, the beautiful Ruth Jayne Cranmer.

"I'll give them just 24 hours," she announced firmly after she has been clapped into the jail on a charge of firing the bullet into Yates' abdomen.

"Either they will come forward and take care of me, or I'm going to tell my story."

At 3 p. m. yesterday, the girl issued her threat. At 3 p. m. today, the time limit of her ultimatum will have expired.

Her lips remain tightly sealed pending that hour. But a small whirlwind of reports are in circulation as to what new light she may shed on the shooting which climaxed a wild party in her apartment last Friday.

HOSPITAL NEWS

PUMPKIN SHOW SCHOOL EVENT IS IMPOSSIBLE

Report Made to Directors By Frank Lynch; Other Events Planned

STUDY HORSE SHOW

To Display Leaves of Different Native Trees

With Circleville's 1931 Pumpkin Show not far distant, on Oct. 7, 8, 9 and 10, many developments have been noted by the Directors of the annual event. At a meeting this week several things of note were disclosed. They follow:

There will no school parade in the Pumpkin Show this year for several reasons, according to Frank A. Lynch, director of this division. School is starting later than heretofore and with times such as they are necessary money with which to take care of different items is not available. The school parade is one of the most popular events of the Pumpkin Show but circumstances will not permit its being staged.

PLANS HORSE SHOW

While the school parade will not be offered, another event that promises to demand its share of interest is being studied, a horse show. Elmer Coles, a newcomer to the city but a willing worker suggested a horse show to Pumpkin Show directors and outlined some plans which may permit the event to be staged. He suggested that a suitable show could be held with 15 entries in the saddle class, from six to 10 entries in the harness class and with a larger number of draft horses. His idea is that the feature of the horse show would be a pony parade with every child in the city and county who owns a pony entering his pet. Prizes should be offered, Mr. Cole asserted, to induce the children to enter their animals.

The next question brought up was where the event would be staged. Mr. Coles suggested that Mason lot off N. Court-st and the advisability of having the show on Pinckney-st which will be roped off and lighted was taken under consideration. Mr. Coles was asked to go further into the problem and report his results to the directors at their meeting next Monday.

OIL MERGER IS REPORTED

Sinclair Consolidated, Two Other Firms Merge; Is 600 Million Strong.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—An oil merger involving $600,000,000, providing for the absorption of four large companies into one, to be known as the Commonwealth Oil company, was three-quarters completed today.

Three of the companies—Sinclair Consolidated Oil company, Prairie Gas and Oil company and Prairie Pipe Line company—have ratified the merger agreement.

Negotiations were reported still under way for acquirement by the new company of the Tidewater Associated company.

It was learned that stockholders of Sinclair and Prairie Oil and Gas will receive share for share in the new company in the exchange of stock. Shareholders in Prairie Pipe Line will be given one and four-tenths shares of Commonwealth stock for each share.

If Tidewater Associated joins the group, each share of stock in that company will be exchanged for seven-eights of a share of Commonwealth.

While no information could be obtained as to the officers and directors of the merger company, it is understood that Harry Sinclair, head of Sinclair Consolidated, will be active in the new management.

HERBERT LEADS STATE LEGION

CLEVELAND, O., Aug 19 Legionnaires of Ohio returned to their every-day tasks today following a three-day sojourn to this city for the thirteenth annual convention of the state American Legion which closed here yesterday with election of officers and naming of Toledo as next year's meeting place after an anti-prohibition movement had been tabled.

Paul Herbert, former state senator from Columbus and a charter member of Ohio's first legion post, Franklin No 1, received unanimous vote of the delegates for state commander to succeed John A Fleeden of Cleveland. Harry Gilligan of Cincinnati was re-elected state treasurer and Reverend A J Gracey of Cleveland was named vice department chaplain to be [illegible] other elections of the [illegible]

FILIBUSTERS LAND IN CUBA

Report American Negroes To Take Part in Uprising Against Machado.

HAVANA, Aug. 19--Reports that rebel expeditionary forces had landed in Oriente province from the United States stirred Havana citizens to intense excitement today.

News of the landing of rebel reinforcements reached Havana through the strict sensorship enforced by the Cuban government and led many to believe that President Machado was not sailing so smoothly as his communigues had indicated.

The president was reported still in Santa Clara province where it was rumored that government forces had lost 180 men in an engagement with rebel troops.

The expedition was said to have landed at Jibara, Oriente, from two schooners with seven machine guns and 8,000,000 rounds of ammunition one of the schooners flew the German flag and the other, the Norwegian. Among the rebels landing were said to have been a number of American negroes.

The expedition was believed here to be the same which ran afoul of the United States coast guard off the New Jersey coast two weeks ago.

JOHN BLAINE DIES

Funeral services will be held Thursday at 2 p. m., at Mt. Sterling for John Blaine, aged 77, who died Tuesday at his farm home near Derby. Mr. Blaine, a very well-known man, was a resident of Mt. Sterling but resided near Derby during the summers. Interment will be in Mt. Sterling cemetery.

Surviving are the widow, Mrs. Belle Crabbe Blaine, a son and a daughter.

KINGSTON PLANS BOY, DOG PARADE

Kingston council and the merchants of the village have definitely decided not to sponsor a street fair this year and in order to provide some attraction and stir up interest in the community in the way of a homecoming, it is proposed that the merchants of the town put on a Ross-co boy and dog parade.

Prizes will be awarded by the merchants and it is pointed out that this form of entertainment does not "skin" anyone like games of chance.

ROAD PROBERS HEAR COOPER, WAID, SILVER

Question Former State Officials Concerning 'Political' Deal

STILL INVESTIGATE

$1,100 Rental of Builing Is Defended

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 19.—Sputtering and sizzling like a firecracker, the state senate's investigation of the highway department reopened today with the committee in possession of a flat denial that former Governor Myers Y. Cooper and his associates "played politics" in buying a site for a highway garage at Troy, O.

State Senator David P. Lorbach of Cincinnati, the Democratic leader of the probe, openly inferred at a hearing late yesterday that the purchase of a garage site and building from M. T. Dilts of Troy was a political transaction.

Former Governor Cooper and two of his cabinet members, former Finance Director Harry D. Silver and former Highway Director Robert N. Waid, were called to tell their own stories of the deal and explain a letter written to the former governor by a Troy attorney.

DENY 'POLITICS'

All testified "politics" had nothing to do with the purchase.

A photostatic copy of a letter from Attorney F. C. Goodrich, urging the governor to use his influence to get the board of cotrol to buy the Troy property, pointing out that it would be advantageous in his campaign for re-election, was produced at the hearing.

The $8,750 paid for the site and the building was excessive. Lorbach hinted to members of the committee during the questioning.

Asserting that he remembered there had been some dispute between Dilts and the state board of control, Cooper said he had no recollection of receiving a letter from Goodrich.

Dilts personally testified that Cooper was "under no obligation to me." Reinforcing this testimony, Goodrich declared that citizens of Troy were criticizing the Cooper administration for its failure to act on the purchase of the site.

Silver also testified, adding to the denials that the transaction was "political."

He defended the board of control, of which he was chairman, for paying $1,100 as rental for the building, saying the board was "under moral obligation" to pay for the use of the property during the months while the deal was pending. He said the deal was a good one for the state.

Roy Walisa, Clinton-st, was made defendant in a cognovit judgment for $124.10 filed in common pleas court Wednesday by D. A. Yates, doing business as the Yates Motor Co.

Live News Of Pickaway-co's Rural Schools

The opening day for the rural schools is left to the discreation of the local boards of education. One township favors Aug. 31 as the beginning of the term but major part of the county schools will open the first week in September as usual.

* * *

Owing to the uncertainty of finances, schools will operate on an eight months basis, which is the statutory requirement in the state. Should the money be available the term may be extended to nine months.

* * *

The county superintendents of southeastern Ohio met in Athens, Monday, Aug. 17, and formed an organization to promote welfare of our schools. Superintendent E. O. McCowen of Scioto-co was elected president and W. H. Webb of Washington-co secretary. The question of state aid for weak school districts was discussed at length. At this time Pickaway-co only has two districts requiring state aid.

* * *

The next and final teachers' examination for this school year will be held at the Court House in Circleville on Friday, Aug. 28, 1931, beginning at eight a. m. All certificates must be filed for record in the office of the county superintendent before the opening of the school term.

* * *

Superintendent E. J. Arnold of Bremen, O., has been employed as superintendent of the Nelsonville, O., schools.

In order to participate in the educational equalization fund commonly called state aid, Muhlenberg-twp will be required to vote a continuance of the 3-mill levy now in force. The local board of education passed a resolution at its last meeting authorizing the board of elections to place the proposition on the ballot at the November election. The levy should be continued this year to guarantee the required eight months of school next year.

TWO LINKED IN SHOOTING CASE

Prominent Men Disclosed Unless Girl is Taken From Jail, She Says.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19—Two other prominent New Jersey men may be drawn into the scandal arising from the shooting of State Senator Roy T. Yates today, as a result of the threat hurled by his lovenest sweetheart, the beautiful Ruth Jayne Cranmer.

"I'll give them just 24 hours,' she announced firmly after she had been clapped into the jail on a charge of firing the bullet into Yates' abdomen.

"Either they will come forward and take care of me, or I'm going to tell my story."

At 3 p. m. yesterday, the girl issued her threat. At 3 p. m. today, the time limit of her ultimatum will have expired.

Her lips remain tightly sealed pending that hour. But a small whirlwind of reports are in circulation as to what new light she may shed on the shooting which climaxed a wild party in her apartment last Friday.

OIL MERGER IS REPORTED

Sinclair Consolidated, Two Other Firms Merge; Is 600 Million Strong.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—An oil merger involving $600,000,000, providing for the absorption of four large companies into one, to be known as the Commonwealth Oil company, was three-quarters completed today.

Three of the companies—Sinclair Consolidated Oil company, Prairie Gas and Oil company and Prairie Pipe Line company—have ratified the merger agreement.

Negotiations were reported still under way for acquirement by the new company of the Tidewater Associated company.

It was learned that stockholders of Sinclair and Prairie Oil and Gas will receive share for share in the new company in the exchange of stock. Shareholders in Prairie Pipe Line will be given one and four-tenths shares of Commonwealth stock for each share.

If Tidewater Associated joins the group, each share o fstock in that company will be exchanged for seven-eights of a share of Commonwealth.

While no information could be obtained as to the officers and directors of the merger company, it is understood that Harry Sinclair, head of Sinclair Consolidated, will be active in the new management.

'LEGGERS KILLED IN N. Y. GANG WAR

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Police drives against gangsters in New York were further defied today after two ex-convict bootleggers were shot to death virtually in the shadows of police headquarters.

Three gunmen walking in "Little Italy" just before midnight recognized two of their rivals just ahead of them and opened fire, each gangster pulling out two pistols. In all 30 bullets were fired.

Joseph Cignia, 21, was shot seven times in the back and Anthony Justiano, 25, was shot 10 times in the back. Both of the victims were gunmen, gangsters and bootleggers, according to police.

PUMPKIN SHOW SCHOOL EVENT IS IMPOSSIBLE

Report Made to Directors By Frank Lynch; Other Events Planned

STUDY HORSE SHOW

To Display Leaves of Different Native Trees

With Circleville's 1931 Pumpkin Show not far distant, on Oct. 7, 8, 9 and 10, many developments have been noted by the Directors of the annual event. At a meeting this week several things of note were disclosed. They follow:

There will no school parade in the Pumpkin Show this year for several reasons, according to Frank A. Lynch, director of this division. School is starting later than heretofore and with times such as they are necessary money with which to take care of different items is not available. The school parade is one of the most popular events of the Pumpkin Show but circumstances will not permit its being staged.

PLANS HORSE SHOW

While the school parade will not be offered, another event that promises to demand its share of interest is being studied, a horse show. Elmer Coles, a newcomer to the city but a willing worker, suggested a horse show to Pumpkin Show directors and outlined some plans which may permit the event to be staged. He suggested that a suitable show could be held with 15 entries in the saddle class, from six to 10 entries in the harness class and with a larger number of draft horses. His idea is that the feature of the horse show would be a pony parade with every child in the city and county who owns a pony entering his pet. Prizes should be offered, Mr. Cole asserted, to induce the children to enter their animals.

The next question brought up was where the event would be staged. Mr. Coles suggested the Mason lot off N. Court-st and the advisability of having the show on Pinckney-st which will be roped off and lighted was taken into consideration. Mr. Coles was asked to go further into the problem and report his results to the directors at their meeting next Monday.

Frank D. Vorhees, state conservation officer in this county, was present at the meeting and offered his assistance in obtaining the state's fish and game exhibit for the show. He suggested that the secretary of the Pumpkin Show committee write to A. F. Moon, chairman of the state conservation council, for the display. A committee of Mr. Vorhees, I. F. Snyder and Mack Parrett, Jr., will also visit I. S. Guthery, state agricultural director, in an effort to obtain this interesting exhibit.

A new feature finds its way into the 1931 Pumpkin Show following a suggestion of W. M. Reid, E. Union-st. The new event will be a display of leaves of many trees natives of Pickaway-co. Mr. Reid, on motion of the directors, will be in charge of the show and will be permitted to use $15 in premiums. L. J. Johnson is the director in charge of the display.

An offer, which is being considered, was made to have a platform dance on the street to be operated on a percentage basis.

One free act has been booked by T. D. Krinn of this department and part of the music has been contracted for. Mr. Krinn suggests the use of an electrical automobile announcer to replace one man calling different events. This would be a big improvement in the show in announcing events.

All directors are to turn in their premium reports to T. F. Jeffries not later than the meeting next Monday.

HERBERT LEADS STATE LEGIONS

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 19.—Legionnaires of Ohio returned to their every-day tasks today following a three-day sojourn to this city for the thirteenth annual convention of the state American Legion which closed here yesterday with election of officers and naming of Toledo as next year's meeting place after an anti-prohibition movement had been tabled.

Paul Herbert, former state senator from Columbus and a charter member of Ohio's first legion post, Franklin No. 1, received unanimous vote of the delegates for state commander to succeed John A. Elden of Cleveland. Harry Gilligan of Cincinnati was re-elected state treasurer and Reverend E. J. Gracey of Cleveland was named state department chaplain in the only other elections of the final session.

LEGAL NEWS FROM THE OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

ARE BRIDGES REAL ESTATE?

A unique question in real property law has been raised by the Sandusky Bay Bridge Co. in its suit against the treasurer of Ottawa-co to enjoin the assessment and collection of taxes against a bridge which this company has constructed over the subaqueous lands of Sandusky Bay between Martins Point in Erie-co and Danbury in Ottawa-co.

Plaintiff company contends that notwithstanding it has erected this bridge which cost in labor and material alone more than one million dollars, and that it now owns said bridge, that the title to the lands on which the bridge was constructed being in the state of Ohio for the benefit of all the people of the state, and therefore the bridge is not "real estate" or "land" as defined in the general code, but is only an easement for a right of way for public use and as such is not subject to taxation.

However, it was argued by Attorney General Gilbert Bettman and Assistant Attorney General William J. Ford who represented the state, that this bridge is the absolute property of the plaintiff, that it is permanently affixed to the land, that it is tangible in form, that it is immaterial that it is constructed upon lands of the state in pursuance of the authority of the general assembly, that it is not exempt from taxation, and that it clearly comes within the provisions of law relating to assessment upon lands of the state in pursuance of the authority of the general assembly, that it is not exempt from taxation, and that it clearly comes within the provision of law relating to assessment of real property. Judge A. F. Allyn of the Ottawa-co court of common pleas has ruled that this is the correct view. A similar case is pending in the Erie-co courts. It is expected that the supreme courts will be asked to make a final determination of the matter.

CHICAGO TOO SLOW

Attorney General Gilbert Bettman has written to William Rothman, Chicago, attorney for the sanitary district of Chicago, protesting against Chicago's slow progress in carrying out the mandate of the U. S. Supreme Court handed down in April, 1930, and relating to the illegal diversion of Lake Michigan water.

The supreme court gave Chicago eight years in which to build sewage disposal plants. Attorney General Bettman stated in his letter that at the rate Chicago is now going, as disclosed by its report recently made to the clerk of the court—that instead of eight years it will take Chicago eighty years to stop the diversion.

General Bettman explained that the supreme court still has jurisdiction of the case, having kept the case open, among other things, for the protest of any parties in interest and for the protest of any lake states with respect to the progress Chicago is making in the construction of sewage disposal plants.

MORAL OBLIGATION

While a board of education may not be held legally responsible for injuries sustained by a pupil who is injured in the manual training shop of a public school, the board may lawfully recognize a moral obligation and pay a claim for such damages from public funds if the circumstances were such that the board would have been liable if not protected by the rule of nonliability of governmental agencies acting in a governmental capacity. This was the ruling of Attorney General Gilbert Bettman in an opinion to Dr. B. O. Skinner, director of education.

FAMOUS AYRSHIRES AT STATE'S FAIR

An exhibit of "Famous Ohio Ayrshires" that will include a world's record heifer, the season's leading grand champion, the 14-year-old Queen of Maples, the "Cow That Time Forgot", and several other notable representatives of this leading dairy breed will be one of the feature displays in the cattle building at the Ohio State Fair, according to Manager Charles M. Beer.

Headlining this group of notable animals is the venerable 14-year-old Queen of Maples, owned by Ellis Evans of Newark, Ohio, who purchased her as his first pure-bred when she was a heifer, and now has a herd of twenty-four female descendants from her. Since this old matron was eight years of age she has made six consecutive records that have averaged over 400 pounds of butterfat per year. Eleven sons and daughters have been born to Queen of Maples, including her daughter, the ten-year-old Bell of Sharon View, that will accompany her to Columbus. The latter cow averaged 411 pounds of butterfat for six consecutive records, and promises to exceed the long record of useful service held by her mother.

Penshurst Charming Kalley, the world's record junior three-year-old Ayrshire heifer with a 305-day production mark of 14,449 pounds of 4.03 per cent milk, 582.62 pounds of butterfat, has been loaned by the Ohio State University. In addition to this heifer's good record she was the winner of the reserve championship honors at the 1930 Ohio State Fair.

Other animals of note include several National Dairy Show winners from the crack show herds of Mrs. E. R. Fritsche, Douglassville, Pennsylvania, Alta Crest Farms, Spencer, Massachusetts, and Balmoral Farms, Ithaca, Michigan. These herds have been recruited with some of the finest specimens of the breed that could be acquired in Scotland, Canada, and the United States. In addition, Ayrshire breeders will be out in force, making the Ayrshire display a feature of the Ohio State Fair. Ayrshires will be judged on Monday, August 31st, by James M. Cochrane, well-known Ayrshire breeder of Bath, New York.

Mexico

By PIERRE J. HUSS

International News Service Staff Correspondent

MEXICO CITY. — Troublesome times which have featured relations between the United States and Mexico in the past, stand today as a sad sequel to the story of 300 swashbuckling American soldiers of fortune who is 1816 banded together under an exiled Spanish general to fight for the independence of Mexico.

Yellowed pages lifted from the archives of General Javier Mina, the almost forgotten hero of Mexican Independence whose papers were brought to light a few days ago, give a graphic eyeview of the activities of these 300 valiant veterans of the Battle of New Orleans, almost all of whom subsequently lost their lives in Mexico fighting the Spaniards or through disease. Some of them even faced the firing squad.

General Mina, every inch as dashing and glamorous as the South American liberators Bolivar and San Martin, was busying himself in Baltimore in 1816 with organizing a haphazard army for an invasion of Mexico. Although aware that previous rebellions there against the Spanish crown had been ruthlessly crushed, Mina was gambler enough to take the long chance. He hated Ferdinand VII of Spain, who forced him to flee when the Bourbon throne was restored after the Napoleonic invasion, and hoped to get revenge by ousting Spain from Mexico and establishing thereby a new republic on the American continent.

He chartered several brigs and schooners to transport his professional army, paid with funds received from British merchants who coveted the trade of Mexico. The Spaniard had little trouble in enlisting the desired number of men, for hundreds of veterans of the War of 1812 and the New Orleans fracas were eager for new adventure. His chief military aide was a Colonel G. D. Young, who was subsequently killed in action.

Final drill and organization previous to the dash into Mexico was carried out in Galveston in the fall of 1816, where several hundred recruits from Mexico and elsewhere swelled the ranks. There was trouble aplenty by now, for it was a motley crew.

* * *

One of the stained letters written in camp at Galveston and dated January 9th, 1817, states:

"To General Mina, Sir: We, the undersigned, non-commissioned officers and privates of the consolidated American regiment, commanded by Colonel Young, having refused this morning to accept the money tendered us, you may wish to know our reasons for so doing.

"Some of us were engaged in Baltimore by Colonel Meyers and Captain —. We were promised $1.50 per day, to commence from the time we embarked. Others of us engaged as non-commissioned officers were promised as follows, viz: Sergeants, $18 per month; corporals, $14, privates, $12 per month, and were in every other respect to be governed by rules and articles of war of the U. S.

"Knowing, general, that you labor under many difficulties we are willing to dispense with those promises at present if you will discharge our arrearages at present at the rate the non-commissioned officers and soldiers of America were paid during our late war.

"Your devoted soldiers: James Donnelly, Edward Geerb, Robert Krems, William Shara, John Flannagan, Abm. Timbrooke, Charles Blacky, Barley Brown."

In April of 1817 the expedition landed at Sota La Marina, south of Tampico. There one of the American officers, Colonel Perry, with several men, deserted and returned to Texas. They were trapped by Spanish troops and Perry killed himself rather than surrender. The rest of the Americans were shot by their captors.

Mina led his men into the heart of Mexico, defeating the forces commanded by the Marquis del Jaral.

When Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon, Jr., American fliers, were first arrested on landing in Japan without a permit, no uneasiness was felt for them. But when the "Jingoes," who are rabidly anti-American, stressed the fact that the fliers flew over fortified areas and used a camera while so doing, the Japanese Secret Service started to build a mighty mountain out of a mole hill. The fliers were charged with making photographs in a prohibited area, as well as with violation of the country's aviation laws. They were each fined $1,025, and it is doubtful if they will be allowed to fly their plane, in which they had hoped to make a non-stop flight from Tokyo to Seattle, out of Japan. The case reveals in startling clarity how very shallow is the doctrine of professed good will that is popularly supposed to be abroad in the world today. Good will is powerful medicine, but it cannot combat suspicion.

Wake Up Your Liver Bile —Without Calomel

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Beware substitutes.

Boss Of Giants Begins To Look To 1932 Season

NEW YORK, Aug. 19—Like a man who walks out on a play that does not strike his fancy, Manager John McGraw of the New York Giants has deserted his team in the 1931 baseball race and is busy trying to do something about 1932.

It was learned today Charles A. Soneham has dug down in his sock and produced some $250,000 to buy players and McGraw and Chief Benber, the Giants' scout, have been going up and down the land looking for first-class ivory.

Purchase of Leonard Koenecke for $75,000 from Indianapolis was said to be only the starter of the planned shake-up of the Giants and next year it is doubtful if a single 1930 outfielder will be among those present. Melvin Ott may survive it he's lucky.

It was reported that the purchase of Ray Pepper, young outfielder on the Rochester club of the International league has already been made. Rochester is a farm of the St. Louis Nationals and it was said today the Cardinals got plenty or cash, as well as an outfielder, in exchange for Pepper.

Pepper is a right handed batter and has been clouting it at about .50 in the International.

McGraw is now trying to make deals with Chicago, Boston and Cincinnati.

The Giants were in third place today, close on the heels of the second-place Chicago Cubs, who finally got tripped by the Boston Braves, 3 to2. A double by Maranville, an error by Catcher Hartnett basketing Richbourg's bunt and a single by Worthington in the ninth accounted for the Braves' triumph. Frankhouse set down the Cubs with five hits.

Chuck Klein hit two home runs and Paul Waner grabbed five hits as the Pirates massacred three Philadelphia hurlers, winning 14 to 5. Spencer was the winning pitcher.

The New York Yankees celebrated Lou Gehrig's 1000th consecutive game by promptly falling down before the Detroit Tigers, 5 to 4. Bridges, Tiger relief hurler, whacked a single to start the eleventh inning and trusty Charlie Gehringer took careful aim and spun a pretty single that won the contest.

Dick Coffman was the only winning St. Louis Brownie hurler in the four-game series with the Washington Senators. He gave the Senators nine hits and his success came when Ralph Kres hit a double with two men on in the third inning. The score was St. Louis 4, Washington 2.

Other Clubs were idle.

GROVE SEEKS RECORD TODAY

By Beating Chicago Hurler Tie Consecutive Game Mark.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19—Robert Moses Grove, left handed fireball pitcher, king of modern twirlers, sought a record today as the world's champion Philadelphia Athletics started a four-game series with the White Sox.

If he wins, it will be his sixteenth in a row, and will tie the mark of the American league for consecutive victories. Joe Wood of the Boston Red Sox and Walter Johnson, of Washington, turned this trick in 1912. Nineteen straight victories were hurled by Timothy Keefe in 1888 and by Rube Marquard in 1912, both members of the New York Giants at the time.

Red Farber, only spit-baller in the league, will oppose Grove. The veteran has lost some tough games lately with practically no support in seven games the sox scored only 15 runs for him, none in the past 23 innings.

ONE BIG INNING DOES WORK FOR OILS OVER RED MAN '9'

Score Seven Markers in Fourth Inning When Everything Happens; Howard White is Tough After First Inning When Two Walks and Triple Start Things in Big Way.

One big inning, the fourth, when they scored seven runs gave the Circleville Oils a victory in the city recreation league over the Red Men at Utilities field Tuesday. The final score was 8-4.

The Red Men started the fireworks in the first inning, rather Howard White on the mound for the Oils started it himself when he walked Heiskell and Smith the first two men to face him. They moved up as Howard Greeno was out and scored on Cotty Radcliff's long triple to center field. He came in on Accord's hit. But except in the sixth when the Red Men scored their remaining marker on a hit and a two base error, the Indians could do nothing with Howard White.

The Oils began their depredations in the second when one run was scored. They came back in the fourth to count the remainder of their markers. The Red Men got big-hearted and three of them watched Bob Pickens' pop fall between them for a single. He stole second and from then on it was 'round-town.' The team batted completely around with Pickens the last man to the plate. Solid base hits and several bad plays marred the inning with Smith, Greeno and C. Radcliff coming in for errors.

Cotty Radcliff with a triple and double led the hitters and was the only man on his team to get more than one safety,seven being handed out by Howard White. Pickens with two singles led the Oils with the willow while Merriman, Steele and O. Smith hit doubles.

The Oils and the Coca Colas are scheduled to play this evening.

Former World's Record Holder of Discus Throw Is Cramp Victim.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—Eric Krenz, former Stanford University track star, and former holder of the world's discus throwing record, was dead today, the victim of cramps suffered in the cold waters of Lake Tahoe when he plunged from a rowboat.

Krenz shouted for help but before vacationers on the beach 200 yards away, or a girl in the boat with him, could aid him he sank. His body was found an hour later.

In 1930, when he was captain of the Stanford track team, Krenz tossed the discus 167 feet, 5 3-8 inches breaking his own world mark by four inches which he had set the preceding year.

He was considered one of America's big hopes to win points in the Olympic games next year. Study of weight tossing form brought Krenz victory in both shotput and discus events. Several times he put the shot more than 50 feet and forced his teammate Harlow Rothert to a record of 52 feet, ¼ inch after a record of 51 feet had stood for 20 years.

CANZONERI-BERG TO MEET

Bout Expected To Be Fought In England Turned Back To New York.

By LES CONKLIN

NEW YORK, Aug. 19— The Tony Canzoneri-Jack (Kid) Berg lightweight championship bout, one of the plums of the waning outdoor season, reposed today in the lap of the Madison Square Garden corporation.

After the match had practically been delivered to Jeff Dickson for the White City arena near London September 14, it suddenly came back to the United States yesterday when the manager of the rival gladiators, "leery" of fighting for a promoter abroad, decided to let the garden stage the fifteen-round championship tilt at the Polo Grounds here on Sept. 10th.

The managers of Berg, who is the idol of the Whitechapel district of London, favored the British capital as the site of the bout but had to yield to the Canzoneri contingent. Canzoneri had been guaranteed the tidy sum of $50,000, win, lose or draw, for the London appearance, and had all but accepted the offer. At the eleventh hour, however, it was discovered that the sum of $20,000 would be confiscated by the British government as an English war tax, which exacts forty per cent of the earnings of foreign boxers.

Promoter Dickerson had moved heaven, earth and Westminister Abbey in an effort to land the bout. He had even agreed to Canzoneri's demand that George Blake of Los Angeles be named as referee. Canzoneri's handlers, distrustful of English arbiters, had insisted that the noted Californian be selected as the third man in the ring.

The idea of shelling out twenty grand to any government, much less the British treasury, was distasteful to the champion's handlers. But boxing men, nevertheless, agreed today that Tony's manager, Sammy Goldman, had made a financial faux pas in switching the bout to New York.

The scale of prices for the bout here is fixed at one to five dollars, the lowest for a chimpionship bout in many years . It is estimated that the bout will draw between $50,000 and $60,000, net. Canzoneri's share will be approximately $20,000. He would have received $30,000 in London, even after donating $20,000 to John Bull's exchequer.

Canzoneri and Berg have met twice before. In their first meeting, in New York on Jan. 17, 1930, Jackie won the decision. In their next engagement, in Chicago last April 2, the Italian surprised the fistic world by belting the Briton out in the third round.

No Shortage of Action!

The annual Gold Cup race, held off Montauk, Long Island, was a classic of speed and power as usual and, as in 1930, Hotsy Totsy, piloted by Victor W. Kliesrath (insert), won the speedy blue ribbon event of the racing season. The entries in the Gold Cup race, speeding by the judges' stand, while framed in flying spray are, front to back: The Californian, Miss Philadelphia, the Hotsy Totsy, the Red Banker and the Louisa. Miss Philadelphia was second and California placed third. Kliesrath is shown holding the coveted trophy.

PROTEST SALE OF PLAYERS TO A. A.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Sale of two star players of the Muskogee, Okla., team in the Western association to the White Sox kicked up a storm of protest which ended today when Judge K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, ordered Ad Wright, an outfielder and leading hitter of the league, to be returned.

Minneapolis claimed it had an option to select any two players it wanted from the Muskogee team and selected Bill Wilson, a pitcher and Wright. As a result, Wright will report to Minneapolis in the American association at the end of the present season.

Outfielder Bill Norman's sale to the Sox so reduced gate receipts that club officials feared their other players would go without pay.

DETROIT TO TRAIN ON WESTERN COAST

PALO ALTO, Cal., Aug. 19.—Detroit's baseball team will train here in 1932, according to Frank Wischon, manager of a hotel where the Tigers are making arrangements to stay.

The local Chamber of Commerce recently spent $1,750 to improve the ball park in order to obtain the American leaguers.

Boss Of Giants Begins To Look To 1932 Season

NEW YORK, Aug. 19—Like a man who walks out on a play that does not strike his fancy, Manager John McGraw of the New York Giants has deserted his team in the 1931 baseball race and is busy trying to do something about 1932.

It was learned today Charles A. Soneham has dug down in his sock and produced some $250,000 to buy players and McGraw and Chief Benber, the Giants' scout, have been going up and down the land looking for first-class ivory.

Purchase of Leonard Koenecke for $75,000 from Indianapolis was said to be only the starter of the planned shake-up of the Giants and next year it is doubtful if a single 1930 outfielder will be among those present. Melvin Ott may survive it he's lucky.

It was reported that the purchase of Ray Pepper, young outfielder on the Rochester club of the International league has already been made. Rochester is a farm of the St. Louis Nationals and it was said today the Cardinals got plenty or cash, as well as an outfielder, in exchange for Pepper.

Pepper is a right handed batter and has been clouting it at about .50 in the International.

McGraw is now trying to make deals with Chicago, Boston and Cincinnati.

The Giants were in third place today, close on the heels of the second-place Chicago Cubs, who finally got tripped by the Boston Braves, 3 to2. A double by Maranville, an error by Catcher Hartnett basketing Richbourg's bunt and a single by Worthington in the ninth accounted for the Braves' triumph. Frankhouse set down the Cubs with five hits.

Chuck Klein hit two home runs and Paul Waner grabbed five hits as the Pirates massacred three Philadelphia hurlers, winning 14 to 5. Spencer was the winning pitcher.

The New York Yankees celebrated Lou Gehrig's 1000th consecutive game by promptly falling down before the Detroit Tigers, 5 to 4. Bridges, Tiger relief hurler, whacked a single to start the eleventh inning and trusty Charlie Gehringer took careful aim and spun a pretty single that won the contest.

Dick Coffman was the only winning St. Louis Brownie hurler in the four-game series with the Washington Senators. He gave the Senators nine hits and his success came when Ralph Kres hit a double with two men on in the third inning. The score was St. Louis 4, Washington 2.

Other Clubs were idle.

GROVE SEEKS RECORD TODAY

By Beating Chicago Hurler Tie Consecutive Game Mark.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19—Robert Moses Grove, left handed fireball pitcher, king of modern twirlers, sought a record today as the world's champion Philadelphia Athletics started a four-game series with the White Sox

If he wins, it will be his sixteenth in a row, and will tie the mark of the American league for consecutive victories. Joe Wood of the Boston Red Sox and Walter Johnson, of Washington, turned this trick in 1912. Nineteen straight victories were hurled by Timothy Keefe in 1888 and by Rube Marquard in 1912, both members of the New York Giants at the time.

Red Farber, only spit-baller in the league, will oppose Grove. The veteran has lost some tough games lately with practically no support in seven games the sox scored only 15 runs for him, none in the past 23 innings.

Promoter Dickerson had moved heaven, earth and Westminister Abbey in an effort to land the bout. He had even agreed to Canzoneri's demand that George Blake of Los Angeles be named as referee. Canzoneri's handlers, distrustful of English arbiters, had insisted that the noted Californian be selected as the third man in the ring.

The idea of shelling out twenty grand to any government, much less the British treasury, was distasteful to the champion's handlers. But boxing men, nevertheless, agreed today that Tony's manager, Sammy Goldman, had made a financial faux pas in switching the bout to New York.

The scale of prices for the bout here is fixed at one to five dollars, the lowest for a chimpionship bout in many years It is estimated that the bout will draw between $50,000 and $60,000, net. Canzoneri's share will be approximately $20,000. He would have received $30,000 in London, even after donating $20,000 to John Bull's exchequer

Canzoneri and Berg have met twice before In their first meeting, in New York on Jan 17 1930 Jackie won the decision In their next engagement in Chicago last April 2 the Italian surprised the fistic world by belting the Briton out in the third round

No Shortage of Action!

The annual Gold Cup race, held off Montauk, Long Island, was a classic of speed and power as usual and, as in 1930, Hotsy Totsy, piloted by Victor W. Kliesrath (insert), won the speedy blue ribbon event of the racing season. The entries in the Gold Cup race, speeding by the judges' stand, while framed in flying spray are, front to back: The Californian, Miss Philadelphia, the Hotsy Totsy, the Red Banker and the Louisa. Miss Philadelphia was second and California placed third. Kliesrath is shown holding the coveted trophy.

PROTEST SALE OF PLAYERS TO A. A.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Sale of two star players of the Muskogee, Okla., team in the Western association to the White Sox kicked up a storm of protest which ended today when Judge K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, ordered Ad Wright, an outfielder and leading hitter of the league, to be returned.

Minneapolis claimed it had an option to select any two players it wanted from the Muskogee team and selected Bill Wilson, a pitcher and Wright As a result, Wright will report to Minneapolis in the American association at the end of the present season

Outfielder Bill Norman's sale to the Sox so reduced gate receipts that club officials feared their other players would go without pay.

$47,000,000 R. R. STATION

MILAN.—The most imposing building of recent construction in Milan is the new Central Station of the Italian State Railways. This structure was begun in 1906, but little headway was made until 1923. White stone and marble were used and the total cost was approximately $47,000,000. This building represents the highest degree of modern engineering skill and railway terminal efficiency, the architects having first visited and studied railway stations in various parts of the world.

ARE BRIDGES REAL ESTATE?

A unique question in real property law has been raised by the Sandusky Bay Bridge Co. in its suit against the treasurer of Ottawa-co to enjoin the assessment and collection of taxes against a bridge which this company has constructed over the subaqueous lands of Sandusky Bay between Martins Point in Erie-co and Danbury in Ottawa-co.

Plaintiff company contends that notwithstanding it has erected this bridge which cost in labor and material alone more than one million dollars, and that it now owns said bridge, that the title to the lands on which the bridge was constructed being in the state of Ohio for the benefit of all the people of the state, and therefore the bridge is not "real estate" or "land" as defined in the general code, but is only an easement for a right of way for public use and as such is not subject to taxation.

However, it was argued by Attorney General Gilbert Bettman and Assistant Attorney General William J. Ford who represented the state, that this bridge is the absolute property of the plaintiff, that it is permanently affixed to the land, that it is tangible in form, that it is immaterial that it is constructed upon lands of the state in pursuance of the authority of the general assembly, that it is not exempt from taxation, and that it clearly comes within the provisions of law relating to assessment upon lands of the state in pursuance of the authority of the general assembly, that it is not exempt from taxation, and that it clearly comes within the provision of law relating to assessment of real property. Judge A. F. Allyn of the Ottawa-co court of common pleas has ruled that this is the correct view. A similar case is pending in the Erie-co courts. It is expected that the supreme courts will be asked to make a final determination of the matter.

CHICAGO TOO SLOW

Attorney General Gilbert Bettman has written to William Rothman, Chicago, attorney for the sanitary district of Chicago, protesting against Chicago's slow progress in carrying out the mandate of the U. S. Supreme Court handed down in April, 1930, and relating to the illegal diversion of Lake Michigan water.

The supreme court gave Chicago eight years in which to build sewage disposal plants. Attorney General Bettman stated in his letter that at the rate Chicago is now going, as disclosed by its report recently made to the clerk of the court—that instead of eight years it will take Chicago eighty years to stop the diversion.

General Bettman explained that the supreme court still has jurisdiction of the case, having kept the case open, among other things, for the protest of any parties in interest and for the protest of any lake states with respect to the progress Chicago is making in the construction of sewage disposal plants.

MORAL OBLIGATION

While a board of education may not be held legally responsible for injuries sustained by a pupil who is injured in the manual training shop of a public school, the board may lawfully recognize a moral obligation and pay a claim for such damages from public funds if the circumstances were such that the board would have been liable if not protected by the rule of nonliability of governmental agencies acting in a governmental capacity. This was the ruling of Attorney General Gilbert Bettman in an opinion to Dr. B. O. Skinner, director of education.

FAMOUS AYRSHIRES AT STATE'S FAIR

An exhibit of "Famous Ohio Ayrshires" that will include a world's record heifer, the season's leading grand champion, the 14-year-old Queen of Maples, the "Cow That Time Forgot", and several other notable representatives of this leading dairy breed will be one of the feature displays in the cattle building at the Ohio State Fair, according to Manager Charles M. Beer.

Headlining this group of notable animals is the venerable 14-year-old Queen of Maples, owned by Ellis Evans of Newark, Ohio, who purchased her as his first pure-bred when she was a heifer, and now has a herd of twenty-four female descendants from her. Since this old matron was eight years of age she has made six consecutive records that have averaged over 400 pounds of butterfat per year. Eleven sons and daughters have been born to Queen of Maples, including her daughter, the ten-year-old Bell of Sharon View, that will accompany her to Columbus. The latter cow averaged 411 pounds of butterfat for six consecutive records, and promises to exceed the long record of useful service held by her mother.

Penshurst Charming Kalley, the world's record junior three-year-old Ayrshire heifer with a 305-day production mark of 14,449 pounds of 4.03 per cent milk, 582.62 pounds of butterfat, has been loaned by the Ohio State University. In addition to this heifer's good record she was the winner of the reserve championship honors at the 1930 Ohio State Fair.

Other animals of note include several National Dairy Show winners from the crack show herds of Mrs. E. R. Fritsche, Douglassville, Pennsylvania, Alta Crest Farms, Spencer, Massachusetts, and Balmoral Farms, Ithaca, Michigan. These herds have been recruited with some of the finest specimens of the breed that could be acquired in Scotland, Canada, and the United States. In addition, Ayrshire breeders will be out in force, making the Ayrshire display a feature of the Ohio State Fair. Ayrshires will be judged on Monday, August 31st, by James M. Cochrane, well-known Ayrshire breeder of Bath, New York.

MEXICO CITY. — Troublesome times which have featured relations between the United States and Mexico in the past, stand today as a sad sequel to the story of 300 swashbuckling American soldiers of fortune who is 1816 banded together under an exiled Spanish general to fight for the independence of Mexico.

Yellowed pages lifted from the archives of General Javier Mina, the almost forgotten hero of Mexican Independence whose papers were brought to light a few days ago, give a graphic eyeview of the activities of these 300 valiant veterans of the Battle of New Orleans, almost all of whom subsequently lost their lives in Mexico fighting the Spaniards or through disease. Some of them even faced the firing squad.

* * *

General Mina, every inch as dashing and glamorous as the South American liberators Bolivar and San Martin, was busying himself in Baltimore in 1816 with organizing a haphazard army for an invasion of Mexico. Although aware that previous rebellions there against the Spanish crown had been ruthlessly crushed, Mina was gambler enough to take the long chance. He hated Ferdinand VII of Spain, who forced him to flee when the Bourbon throne was restored after the Napoleonic invasion, and hoped to get revenge by ousting Spain from Mexico and establishing thereby a new republic on the American continent.

He chartered several brigs and schooners to transport his professional army, paid with funds received from British merchants who coveted the trade of Mexico. The Spaniard had little trouble in enlisting the desired number of men, for hundreds of veterans of the War of 1812 and the New Orleans fracas were eager for new adventure. His chief military aide was a Colonel G. D. Young, who was subsequently killed in action.

Final drill and organization previous to the dash into Mexico was carried out in Galveston in the fall of 1816, where several hundred recruits from Mexico and elsewhere swelled the ranks. There was trouble aplenty by now, for it was a motley crew.

* * *

One of the stained letters written in camp at Galveston and dated January 9th, 1817, states:

"To General Mina, Sir: We, the undersigned, non-commissioned officers and privates of the consolidated American regiment, commanded by Colonel Young, having refused this morning to accept the money tendered us, you may wish to know our reasons for so doing.

"Some of us were engaged in Baltimore by Colonel Meyers and Captain —. We were promised $1.50 per day, to commence from the time we embarked. Others of us engaged as non-commissioned officers were promised as follows, viz: Sergeants, $18 per month; corporals, $14; privates, $12 per month, and were in every other respect to be governed by rules and articles of war of the U. S.

"Knowing, general, that you labor under many difficulties we are willing to dispense with those promises at present if you will discharge our arrearages at present at the rate the non-commissioned officers and soldiers of America were paid during our late war.

"Your devoted soldiers: James Donnelly, Edward Geerb, Robert Krems, William Shara, John Flannagan, Abm. Timbrooke, Charles Blacky, Barley Brown."

* * *

In April of 1817 the expedition landed at Sota La Marina, south of Tampico. There one of the American officers, Colonel Perry, with several men, deserted and returned to Texas. They were trapped by Spanish troops and Perry killed himself rather than surrender. The rest of the Americans were shot by their captors.

Mina led his men into the heart of Mexico, defeating the forces commanded by the Marquis del Jaral.

But when the "Jingoes," who are rabidly anti-American, stressed the fact that the fliers flew over fortified areas and used a camera while so doing, the Japanese Secret Service started to build a mighty mountain out of a mole hill. The fliers were charged with making photographs in a prohibited area, as well as with violation of the country's aviation laws. They were each fined $1,025, and it is doubtful if they will be allowed to fly their plane, in which they had hoped to make a non-stop flight from Tokyo to Seattle, out of Japan. ### And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

When Queen Mary must talk of advertising, what must the poor mouse-trap builder do? No longer will the world make a beaten path to his door, however wonderful his mouse-trap. Because his competitors are out telling the world all about their products in advertising. The world is listening. And buying!

For Best Values Read The Herald

There's the situation, sad as it may be to some. The most direct, effective, time-tested, economical way of reaching the public is through the medium of a daily newspaper. In Circleville the buying public reads the Herald and uses its advertising columns as a shopping guide. # Boss Of Giants Begins To Look To 1932 Season

NEW YORK, Aug. 19—Like a man who walks out on a play that does not strike his fancy, Manager John McGraw of the New York Giants has deserted his team in the 1931 baseball race and is busy trying to do something about 1932.

It was learned today Charles A. Soneham has dug down in his sock and produced some $250,000 to buy players and McGraw and Chief Benber, the Giants' scout, have been going up and down the land looking for first-class ivory.

Purchase of Leonard Koenecke for $75,000 from Indianapolis was said to be only the starter of the planned shake-up of the Giants and next year it is doubtful if a single 1930 outfielder will be among those present. Melvin Ott may survive it he's lucky.

It was reported that the purchase of Ray Pepper, young outfielder on the Rochester club of the International league has already been made. Rochester is a farm of the St. Louis Nationals and it was said today the Cardinals got plenty or cash, as well as an outfielder, in exchange for Pepper.

Pepper is a right handed batter and has been clouting it at about .50 in the International.

McGraw is now trying to make deals with Chicago, Boston and Cincinnati.

The Giants were in third place today, close on the heels of the second-place Chicago Cubs, who finally got tripped by the Boston Braves, 3 to2. A double by Maranville, an error by Catcher Hartnett basketing Richbourg's bunt and a single by Worthington in the ninth accounted for the Braves' triumph. Frankhouse set down the Cubs with five hits.

Chuck Klein hit two home runs and Paul Waner grabbed five hits as the Pirates massacred three Philadelphia hurlers, winning 14 to 5. Spencer was the winning pitcher.

The New York Yankees celebrated Lou Gehrig's 1000th consecutive game by promptly falling down before the Detroit Tigers, 5 to 4. Bridges, Tiger relief hurler, whacked a single to start the eleventh inning and trusty Charlie Gehringer took careful aim and spun a pretty single that won the contest.

Dick Coffman was the only winning St. Louis Brownie hurler in the four-game series with the Washington Senators. He gave the Senators nine hits and his success came when Ralph Kres hit a double with two men on in the third inning. The score was St. Louis 4, Washington 2.

Other Clubs were idle.

GROVE SEEKS RECORD TODAY

By Beating Chicago Hurler Tie Consecutive Game Mark.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19—Robert Moses Grove, left handed fireball pitcher, king of modern twirlers, sought a record today as the world's champion Philadelphia Athletics started a four-game series with the White Sox.

If he wins, it will be his sixteenth in a row, and will tie the mark of the American league for consecutive victories. Joe Wood of the Boston Red Sox and Walter Johnson, of Washington, turned this trick in 1912. Nineteen straight victories were hurled by Timothy Keefe in 1888 and by Rube Marquard in 1912, both members of the New York Giants at the time.

Red Farber, only spit-baller in the league, will oppose Grove. The veteran has lost some tough games lately with practically no support in seven games the sox scored only 15 runs for him, none in the past 23 innings.

ONE BIG INNING DOES WORK FOR OILS OVER RED MAN '9'

Score Seven Markers in Fourth Inning When Everything Happens; Howard White is Tough After First Inning When Two Walks and Triple Start Things in Big Way.

One big inning, the fourth, when they scored seven runs gave the Circleville Oils a victory in the city recreation league over the Red Men at Utilities field Tuesday. The final score was 8-4.

The Red Men started the fireworks in the first ining, rather Howard White on the mound for the Oils started it himself when he walked Heiskell and Smith the first two men to face him. They moved up as Howard Greeno was out and scored on Cotty Radcliff's long triple to center field. He came in on Accord's hit. But except in the sixth when the Red Men scored their remaining marker on a hit and a two base error, the Indians could do nothing with Howard White.

The Oils began their depredations in the second when one run was scored. They came back in the fourth to count the remainder of their markers. The Red Men got big-hearted and three of them watched Bob Pickens' pop fall between them for a single. He stole second and from then on it was 'round-town.' The team batted completely around with Pickens the last man to the plate. Solid base hits and several bad plays marred the inning with Smith, Greeno and C. Radcliff coming in for errors.

Cotty Radcliff with a triple and double led the hitters and was the only man on his team to get more than one safety,seven being handed out by Howard White. Pickens with two singles led the Oils with the willow while Merriman, Steele and O. Smith hit doubles.

The Oils and the Coca Colas are scheduled to play this evening.

ERIC KRENZ, ATHLETE, DIES

Former World's Record Holder of Discus Throw Is Cramp Victim.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—Eric Krenz, former Stanford University track star, and former holder of the world's discus throwing record, was dead today, the victim of cramps suffered in the cold waters of Lake Tahoe when he plunged from a rowboat.

Krenz shouted for help but before vacationers on the beach 200 yards away, or a girl in the boat with him, could aid him he sank. His body was found an hour later.

In 1930, when he was captain of the Stanford track team, Krenz tossed the discus 167 feet, 5 3-8 inches breaking his own world mark by four inches which he had set the preceding year.

He was considered one of America's big hopes to win points in the Olympic games next year. Study of weight tossing form brought Krenz victory in both shotput and discus events. Several times he put the shot more than 50 feet and forced his teammate Harlow Rothert to a record of 52 feet, ¼ inch after a record of 51 feet had stood for 20 years.

CANZONERI-BERG TO MEET

Bout Expected To Be Fought In England Turned Back To New York.

By LES CONKLIN

NEW YORK, Aug. 19— The Tony Canzoneri-Jack (Kid) Berg lightweight championship bout, one of the plums of the waning outdoor season, reposed today in the lap of the Madison Square Garden corporation.

After the match had practically been delivered to Jeff Dickson for the White City arena near London September 14, it suddenly came back to the United States yesterday when the manager of the rival gladiators, "leery" of fighting for a promoter abroad, decided to let the garden stage the fifteen-round championship tilt at the Polo Grounds here on Sept. 10th.

The managers of Berg, who is the idol of the Whitechapel district of London, favored the British capital as the site of the bout but had to yield to the Canzoneri contingent. Canzoneri had been guaranteed the tidy sum of $50,000, win, lose or draw, for the London appearance, and had all but accepted the offer. At the eleventh hour, however, it was discovered that the sum of $20,000 would be confiscated by the British government as an English war tax, which exacts forty per cent of the earnings of foreign boxers.

Promoter Dickerson had moved heaven, earth and Westminister Abbey in an effort to land the bout. He had even agreed to Canzoneri's demand that George Blake of Los Angeles be named as referee. Canzoneri's handlers, distrustful of English arbiters, had insisted that the noted Californian be selected as the third man in the ring.

The idea of shelling out twenty grand to any government, much less the British treasury, was distasteful to the champion's handlers. But boxing men, nevertheless, agreed today that Tony's manager, Sammy Goldman, had made a financial faux pas in switching the bout to New York.

The scale of prices for the bout here is fixed at one to five dollars, the lowest for a chimpionship bout in many years . It is estimated that the bout will draw between $50,000 and $60,000, net. Canzoneri's share will be approximately $20,000. He would have received $30,000 in London, even after donating $20,000 to John Bull's exchequer.

Canzoneri and Berg have met twice before. In their first meeting, in New York on Jan. 17, 1930, Jackie won the decision. In their next engagement, in Chicago last April 2, the Italian surprised the fistic world by belting the Briton out in the third round.

No Shortage of Action!

The annual Gold Cup race, held off Montauk, Long Island, was a classic of speed and power as usual and, as in 1930, Hotsy Totsy, piloted by Victor W. Kliesrath (insert), won the speedy blue ribbon event of the racing season. The entries in the Gold Cup race, speeding by the judges' stand, while framed in flying spray are, front to back: The Californian, Miss Philadelphia, the Hotsy Totsy, the Red Banker and the Louisa. Miss Philadelphia was second and California placed third. Kliesrath is shown holding the coveted trophy.

PROTEST SALE OF PLAYERS TO A. A.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Sale of two star players of the Muskogee, Okla., team in the Western association to the White Sox kicked up a storm of protest which ended today when Judge K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, ordered Ad Wright, an outfielder and leading hitter of the league, to be returned.

Minneapolis claimed it had an option to select any two players it wanted from the Muskogee team and selected Bill Wilson, a pitcher and Wright. As a result, Wright will report to Minneapolis in the American association at the end of the present season.

Outfielder Bill Norman's sale to the Sox so reduced gate receipts that club officials feared their other players would go without pay.

Former World's Record Holder of Discus Throw Is Cramp Victim.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19—Eric Krenz, former Stanford University track star, and former holder of the world's discus throwing record, was dead today, the victim of cramps suffered in the cold waters of Lake Tahoe when he plunged from a rowboat

Krenz shouted for help but before vacationers on the beach 200 yards away, or a girl in the boat with him, could aid him he sank. His body was found an hour later.

In 1930, when he was captain of the Stanford track team, Krenz tossed the discus 167 feet, 5 3-8 inches breaking his own world mark by four inches which he had set the preceding year.

He was considered one of America's big hopes to win points in the Olympic games next year. Study of weight tossing form brought Krenz victory in both shotput and discus events. Several times he put the shot more than 50 feet and forced his teammate Harlow Rothert to a record of 52 feet, ¼ inch after a record of 51 feet had stood for 20 years.

CANZONERI-BERG TO MEET

Bout Expected To Be Fought In England Turned Back To New York.

By LES CONKLIN

NEW YORK, Aug. 19— The Tony Canzoneri-Jack (Kid) Berg lightweight championship bout, one of the plums of the waning outdoor season, reposed today in the lap of the Madison Square Garden corporation.

After the match had practically been delivered to Jeff Dickson for the White City arena near London September 14, it suddenly came back to the United States yesterday when the manager of the rival gladiators, "leery" of fighting for a promoter abroad, decided to let the garden stage the fifteen-round championship tilt at the Polo Grounds here on Sept. 10th.

The managers of Berg, who is the idol of the Whitechapel district of London, favored the British capital as the site of the bout but had to yield to the Canzoneri contingent. Canzoneri had been guaranteed the tidy sum of $50,000, win, lose or draw, for the London appearance, and had all but accepted the offer. At the eleventh hour, however, it was discovered that the sum of $20,000 would be confiscated by the British government as an English war tax, which exacts forty per cent of the earnings of foreign boxers

Promoter Dickerson had moved heaven, earth and Westminister Abbey in an effort to land the bout. He had even agreed to Canzoneri's demand that George Blake of Los Angeles be named as referee. Canzoneri's handlers, distrustful of English arbiters, had insisted that the noted Californian be selected as the third man in the ring.

The idea of shelling out twenty grand to any government, much less the British treasury, was distasteful to the champion's handlers. But boxing men, nevertheless, agreed today that Tony's manager, Sammy Goldman, had made a financial faux pas in switching the bout to New York

The scale of prices for the bout here is fixed at one to five dollars, the lowest for a chimpionship bout in many years It is estimated that the bout will draw between $50,000 and $60,000, net Canzoneri's share will be approximately $20,000. He would have received $30,000 in London, even after donating $20,000 to John Bull's exchequer

Canzoneri and Berg have met twice before In their first meeting, in New York on Jan 17, 1930 Jackie won the decision In their next engagement in Chicago last April 2 the Italian surprised the fistic world by belting the Briton out in the third round

No Shortage of Action!

The annual Gold Cup race, held off Montauk, Long Island, was a classic of speed and power as usual and, as in 1930, Hotsy Totsy, piloted by Victor W. Kliesrath (insert), won the speedy blue ribbon event of the racing season. The entries in the Gold Cup race, speeding by the judges' stand, while framed in flying spray are, front to back: The Californian, Miss Philadelphia, the Hotsy Totsy, the Red Banker and the Louisa. Miss Philadelphia was second and California placed third. Kliesrath is shown holding the coveted trophy.

PROTEST SALE OF PLAYERS TO A. A.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19—Sale of two star players of the Muskogee, Okla., team in the Western association to the White Sox kicked up a storm of protest which ended today when Judge K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, ordered Ad Wright, an outfielder and leading hitter of the league, to be returned.

Minneapolis claimed it had an option to select any two players it wanted from the Muskogee team and selected Bill Wilson, a pitcher and Wright As a result, Wright will report to Minneapolis in the American association at the end of the present season.

Outfielder Bill Norman's sale to the Sox so reduced gate receipts that club officials feared their other players would go without pay

DETROIT TO TRAIN ON WESTERN COAST

PALO ALTO, Cal., Aug. 19.—Detroit's baseball team will train here in 1932, according to Frank Wischon, manager of a hotel where the Tigers are making arrangements to stay.

The local Chamber of Commerce recently spent $1,750 to improve the ball park in order to obtain the American leaguers.

$47,000,000 R. R. STATION

MILAN.—The most imposing building of recent construction in Milan is the new Central Station of the Italian State Railways. This structure was begun in 1906, but little headway was made until 1923. White stone and marble were used and the total cost was approximately $47,000,000. This building represents the highest degree of modern engineering skill and railway terminal efficiency, the architects having first visited and studied railway stations in various parts of the world.

LEGAL NEWS FROM THE OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

ARE BRIDGES REAL ESTATE?

A unique question in real property law has been raised by the Sandusky Bay Bridge Co. in its suit agninst the treasurer of Ottawa-co to enjoin the assessment and collection of taxes against a bridge which this company has constructed over the subaqueous lands of Sandusky Bay between Martins Point in Erie-co and Danbury in Ottawa-co.

Plaintiff company contends that notwithstanding it has erected this bridge which cost in labor and material alone more than one million dollars, and that it now owns said bridge, that the title to the lands on which the bridge was constructed being in the state of Ohio for the benefit of all the people of the state, and therefore the bridge is not "real estate" or "land" as defined in the general code, but is only an easement for a right of way for public use and as such is not subject to taxation.

However, it was argued by Attorney General Gilbert Bettman and Assistant Attorney General William J. Ford who represented the state, that this bridge is the absolute property of the plaintiff, that it is permanently affixed to the land, that it is tangible in form, that it is immaterial that it is constructed upon lands of the state in pursuance of the authority of the general assembly, that it is not exempt from taxation, and that it clearly comes within the provisions of law relating to assessment upon lands of the state in pursuance of the authority of the general assembly, that it is not exempt from taxation, and that it clearly comes within the provision of law relating to assessment of real property. Judge A. F. Allyn of the Ottawa-co court of common pleas has ruled that this is the correct view. A similar case is pending in the Erie-co courts. It is expected that the supreme courts will be asked to make a final determination of the matter.

CHICAGO TOO SLOW

Attorney General Gilbert Bettman has written to William Rothman, Chicago, attorney for the sanitary district of Chicago, protesting against Chicago's slow progress in carrying out the mandate of the U. S. Supreme Court handed down in April, 1930, and relating to the illegal diversion of Lake Michigan water.

The supreme court gave Chicago eight years in which to build sewage disposal plants. Attorney General Bettman stated in his letter that at the rate Chicago is now going, as disclosed by its report recently made to the clerk of the court—that instead of eight years it will take Chicago eighty years to stop the diversion.

General Bettman explained that the supreme court still has jurisdiction of the case, having kept the case open, among other things, for the protest of any parties in interest and for the protest of any lake states with respect to the progress Chicago is making in the construction of sewage disposal plants.

MORAL OBLIGATION

While a board of education may not be held legally responsible for injuries sustained by a pupil who is injured in the manual training shop of a public school, the board may lawfully recognize a moral obligation and pay a claim for such damages from public funds if the circumstances were such that the board would have been liable if not protected by the rule of nonliability of governmental agencies acting in a governmental capacity. This was the ruling of Attorney General Gilbert Bettman in an opinion to Dr. B. O. Skinner, director of education.

FAMOUS AYRSHIRES AT STATE'S FAIR

An exhibit of "Famous Ohio Ayrshires" that will include a world's record heifer, the season's leading grand champion, the 14-year-old Queen of Maples, the "Cow That Time Forgot", and several other notable representatives of this leading dairy breed will be one of the feature displays in the cattle building at the Ohio State Fair, according to Manager Charles M. Beer.

Headlining this group of notable animals is the venerable 14-year-old Queen of Maples, owned by Ellis Evans of Newark, Ohio, who purchased her as his first pure-bred when she was a heifer, and now has a herd of twenty-four female descendants from her. Since this old matron was eight years of age she has made six consecutive records that have averaged over 400 pounds of butterfat per year. Eleven sons and daughters have been born to Queen of Maples, including her daughter, the ten-year-old Bell of Sharon View, that will accompany her to Columbus. The latter cow averaged 411 pounds of butterfat for six consecutive records, and promises to exceed the long record of useful service held by her mother.

Penshurst Charming Kalley, the world's record junior three-year-old Ayrshire heifer with a 305-day production mark of 14,449 pounds of 4.03 per cent milk, 582.62 pounds of butterfat, has been loaned by the Ohio State University. In addition to this heifer's good record she was the winner of the reserve championship honors at the 1930 Ohio State Fair.

Other animals of note include several National Dairy Show winners from the crack show herds of Mrs. E. R. Fritsche, Douglassville, Pennsylvania, Alta Crest Farms, Spencer, Massachusetts, and Balmoral Farms, Ithaca, Michigan. These herds have been recruited with some of the finest specimens of the breed that could be acquired in Scotland, Canada, and the United States. In addition, Ayrshire breeders will be out in force, making the Ayrshire display a feature of the Ohio State Fair. Ayrshires will be judged on Monday, August 31st, by James M. Cochrane, well-known Ayrshire breeder of Bath, New York.

Mexico

By PIERRE J. HUSS

International News Service Staff Correspondent

MEXICO CITY. — Troublesome times which have featured relations between the United States and Mexico in the past, stand today as a sad sequel to the story of 300 swashbuckling American soldiers of fortune who is 1816 banded together under an exiled Spanish general to fight for the independence of Mexico.

Yellowed pages lifted from the archives of General Javier Mina, the almost forgotten hero of Mexican Independence whose papers were brought to light a few days ago, give a graphic eyeview of the activities of these 300 valiant veterans of the Battle of New Orleans, almost all of whom subsequently lost their lives in Mexico fighting the Spaniards or through disease. Some of them even faced the firing squad.

* * *

General Mina, every inch as dashing and glamorous as the South American liberators Bolivar and San Martin, was busying himself in Baltimore in 1816 with organizing a haphazard army for an invasion of Mexico. Although aware that previous rebellions there against the Spanish crown had been ruthlessly crushed, Mina was gambler enough to take the long chance. He hated Ferdinand VII of Spain, who forced him to flee when the Bourbon throne was restored after the Napoleonic invasion, and hoped to get revenge by ousting Spain from Mexico and establishing thereby a new republic on the American continent.

He chartered several brigs and schooners to transport his professional army, paid with funds received from British merchants who coveted the trade of Mexico. The Spaniard had little trouble in enlisting the desired number of men, for hundreds of veterans of the War of 1812 and the New Orleans fracas were eager for new adventure. His chief military aide was a Colonel G. D. Young, who was subsequently killed in action.

Final drill and organization previous to the dash into Mexico was carried out in Galveston in the fall of 1816, where several hundred recruits from Mexico and elsewhere swelled the ranks. There was trouble aplenty by now, for it was a motley crew.

* * *

One of the stained letters written in camp at Galveston and dated January 9th, 1817, states:

"To General Mina, Sir: We, the undersigned, non-commissioned officers and privates of the consolidated American regiment, commanded by Colonel Young, having refused this morning to accept the money tendered us, you may wish to know our reasons for so doing.

"Some of us were engaged in Baltimore by Colonel Meyers and Captain —. We were promised $1.50 per day, to commence from the time we embarked. Others of us engaged as non-commissioned officers were promised as follows, viz: Sergeants, $18 per month; corporals, $14; privates, $12 per month, and were in every other respect to be governed by rules and articles of war of the U. S.

"Knowing, general, that you labor under many difficulties we are willing to dispense with those promises at present if you will discharge our arrearages at present at the rate the non-commissioned officers and soldiers of America were paid during our late war.

"Your devoted soldiers: James Donnelly, Edward Geerb, Robert Krems, William Shara, John Flannagan, Abm. Timbrooke, Charles Blacky, Barley Brown."

* * *

In April of 1817 the expedition landed at Sota La Marina, south of Tampico. There one of the American officers, Colonel Perry, with several men, deserted and returned to Texas. They were trapped by Spanish troops and Perry killed himself rather than surrender. The rest of the Americans were shot by their captors.

Mina led his men into the heart of Mexico, defeating the forces commanded by the Marquis del Jaral.

Innocent Landing With Camera, Without Permit, Gave Super-Trained Secret Service, Bored by Monotony of Peace, Longed-for Opportunity

HUGH HERNDON, JR. & CLYDE PANGBORN.

W. W. FARLEY

MRS. HUGH HERNDON, JR.

When Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon, Jr., American fliers, were first arrested on landing in Japan without a permit, no uneasiness was felt for them. But when the "Jingoes," who are rabidly anti-American, stressed the fact that the fliers flew over fortified areas and used a camera while so doing, the Japanese Secret Service started to build a mighty mountain out of a mole hill. The fliers were charged with making photographs in a prohibited area, as well as with violation of the country's aviation laws. They were each fined $1,025, and it is doubtful if they will be allowed to fly their plane, in which they had hoped to make a non-stop flight from Tokyo to Seattle, out of Japan. The case reveals in startling clarity how very shallow is the doctrine of professed good will that is popularly supposed to be abroad in the world today. Good will is powerful medicine, but it cannot combat suspicion.

Wake Up Your Liver Bile —Without Calomel

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist a substitute.

Cash Value of Husbands

AN estimable Roman matron by the name of Cornelia has been noted in history for having pointed to her son and remarked: "There are my jewels." What she thought, if anything, of Mr. Gracchus, father of the boys, history fails to record. Yet the Gracchus family moved in the best of Roman social circles and somebody had to pay the bills.

Cornelia's attitude has been shared by wives since the beginning of the marriage custom, more startling illustration of woman's lack of business acumen could be found than her failure to discover in her husband a cash asset.

If you stop to consider it, every man who works at all may be regarded by his wife as so much capital. If he is making $30 a week his cash value is $78,000 plus interest if he lives to his fiftieth wedding anniversary. Even the parson and professor laboring for a mere $3000 a year, when viewed in this light, constitute a surprisingly important investment. In other words, a husband is the physical embodiment of his earning capacity.

Women, ordinarily, is not careless of her possessions. She keeps her jewels in a strong box and her furs and finery in a cedar chest. Such tangible assets as sewing machines, washing machines, lawnmowers and other domestic appliances she guards with a scrupulous care. Yet she permits the highest priced machine in the house to work overtime without the least consideration for wear and tear. Of course she keeps friends husband locked up at night, thereby breaking the cardinal principle of economics, that capital should be kept in circulation.

What a happy world this would be for husbands if wives could be made to understand that when they send their husbands into the cellar to tend the furnace they are risking the loss of an investment of some thousands of dollars.

LEGISLATORS NOT ELIGIBLE

In an opinion to Governor George White, Attorney General Gilbert Bettman has held that a member of the General Assembly is not eligible to reappointment on the board of parole.

General Bettman also held that a member of the General Assembly may lawfully be appointed on the board created to make a survey of the waterways of the state, and may, at the same time, hold his seat in the General Assembly providing it is determined by the Governor that no compensation other than expenses be fixed for the members of said commission. If, however, it is determined by the Governor that compensation other than expenses be fixed for the members of said commission, a member of the General Assembly who is appointed to and accepts membership on this commission must, forthwith, resign his seat in the General Assembly, General Bettman held.

Evolution of Gastronomy

SOBER minds have studied the young bridge players and discovered what is the matter with them. Their principal shortcoming lies in the fact that they have refused to take up the greatest of arts, of which the patron saint, according to Brillat-Savarin, is Gasterea.

Hence all the boredom and pessimism of the modern woman. Back to the gas range, is the cry of viewers-with-alarm. Out with the ready made food. Put an end to cold snacks. Woo Gasterea and restore husbands and happiness to homes.

The gastronomical aesthetes link music with gastronomy, and compare a young goose, properly stuffed, roasted and served, with Bethoven's Symphony Eroica—to the latter's disadvantage. They conjure up the spirits of vanished omlettes ad they moan over the prevalence of eggs fried hard in heavy grease.

What would the Puritan fathers think of this modern hankering for the fleshpots? The days of salt pork and corn are long since gone. But as for American wives abondoning the art of cooking, or the entire country hungry for filet de catfish au grape juice blanc, followed by supreme de boeuf with pommes soufflees and haricots verts au natural—the choice of the Puritan fathers might be in favor of more bridge games.

But there seems to be conflicting opinions on this score. Of late there has been no little evidence of a return to popularity of the abundant dinner table. Meals "fit for a king" are said to be quite common in common American homes, and wifely descriptions of bridge luncheons make epicurean husbands green with envy.

Sometimes one suspects that complacent matrons, forgetful of their hard-biscuit and delicatessen days as young brides, are responsible for this libel on the modern housewife. Finished cooks and beginners are probably in the same ratio today as in grandmother's day.

Statistics on Success

BUSINESS men and college graduates have long felt the need of some method of advising young men about choice of a job. A common complaint is that graduates expects to step directly from the classroom to well-paid executive responsibility. Less murmuring is heard form the boys though they seem to have cause to charge bad management to somebody.

Young men hardly can be expected to make wise judgments for the future when they have no facts to go upon. The employer has the information, but it apparently has not occurred to him until recently that it might be sensible to give it to his prospective employes.

The college man is in need of concreate fact to show him the steps to his goal, the length of time he will probably have to spend in each position as he asends, and the amount of money he may expect to receive. All these facts are in the hands of every employer. He is able to tell the newcomer, in terms of persons who have already traveled the same path, details regarding the vocation he wishes to take up.

There is no light in the old, generalized advice to young men seeking a life work. The familiar vocational lecture, abounding in platitudes and applying equally to all kinds of jobs, is of no real help. But if a young man is told that before he can make $20,000 a year as buyer in a department store he must be a stock boy, junior salesman, salesman, head of stock and assistant buyers, and if he sees that this has actually been done by many before him, he has information of practical value.

If a business can actually offer opportunities to young men and is in need of new blood, it would be to its advantage to make opportunities known.

ANOTHER EM7RGENCY CASE

"MAKE-BELIEVE" by FAITH BALDWIN

Copyright, 1930, by Faith Baldwin — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Travers Lorrimer, son of the wealthy Margaret Lorrimer, broods constantly for Delight Harford, whom he claims to have married in England during the war. No trace can be found of the girl, and when Travers mistakes Mary Lou Thurston, pretty, young orphan, for Delight, Mrs. Lorrimer induces Mary Lou to play the part. Travers is told he must win "Delight" all over again. In the months that follow, Travers is more attracted to "Delight" than ever. Mary Lou loves Travers and feels she cannot keep up the masquerade. Just as the crisis is reached, Larry Mitchell, Mary Lou's newspaper reporter friend, locates the real Delight acting in a revue. Mary Lou is stunned by the news. Mrs. Lorrimer comforts Mary Lou and plans to investigate. She attends the revue while Jenny Wynne, Larry's fiancee, gives a party to keep Travers from getting suspicious. Mary Lou sees her castle of dreams crumbling about her. In a moment of surrender, she permits Travers to kiss her. Meanwhile, Mrs. Lorrimer studies Delight at the theatre.

CHAPTER XLI.

THERE was a good comedian, and a leading woman who was pretty and graceful and charming, and who scored, obviously, a real personal triumph. There were plenty of good looking show girls and many specialty numbers, good, bad and indifferent. But it is probable that neither Mrs. Lorrimer nor Dr. Mathews could have given a coherent description of the piece or of anyone in it, save of the small, vivacious little person billed as Diana Hackett, and about whom rumors flew, from lipsticked mouth to lipsticked mouth, in the lobby, between acts, while tuxedoed gentlemen listened skeptically and critics smiled wearily.

"This Hackett woman . . . rather good looking, isn't she? They say her father's an earl or something."

"Diana Hackett? Lady Diana, I've heard. She can't act, of course. . . ."

"Well, decent of her not to use the title, anyway!"

"She hasn't kept it a secret, though, one notices."

"Sweet are the uses of publicity!"

But she was only a very small part of the evening to the majority of the audience, and the entire evening to Margaret Lorrimer and her old friend.

The Comeback

Diana—the real Delight—was attractive behind the footlights. The tired lines, the hard molding of her face, disappeared in the flattering glow; make-up concealed a great deal. She was, however, no actress. Still, she sang passably; she wore clothes—what there were of them—gracefully, and with authentic chic, and she did something she called dancing well enough. She had personality, a gay friendliness toward her audience. And she worked hard. She had to work hard, poor creature, for this was her big chance, unexpectedly arrived at and seized with heaven knew what hope and relief, to make something of herself, to eat three meals a day for an indefinite time.

After the first act Mrs. Lorrimer spoke, very low, to Dr. Mathews. She had been tense as fine strung wire at the first appearance of the woman she had come to see and to judge. Now she relaxed a little.

"She's pretty—I can see the resemblance to—"

"Yes," he interrupted, "of course you can. So can I."

Mrs. Lorrimer was silent for a minute. Then she said:

"Dan, I don't know what to do!"

"You'll do what's right, what's best, Margaret," he told her, strongly.

"And that is?" she questioned.

He twisted his program in his hands.

"I can't presume to advise you," he replied, quietly. "You'll have to work this out for yourself. Take your time, think it over. You'll be sick and sorry all the rest of your life if you commit an injustice. But it is up to you, Margaret. Whatever you do, I'll stand by," he assured her, needlessly.

She smiled at him gratefully.

"Of course," she answered, "I know you will. But—oh, I wanted to see for myself. And now I have seen her, I know I can't judge her by just this business of sitting in an audience. Yet intuition is a strange thing. Dan. I'm perfectly convinced, sitting here, that—that he'd never be happy with her."

Mathews said, after a pause:

"You can't think of that now. You must find out how much of a claim she has on him. After all—if she is his wife—?"

The lights were lowered. The curtain went up and the play went on. Margaret watched it unseeingly save for those brief periods when the woman billed as Diana Hackett was on the stage. Then the brown eyes were keen and the slim, fine body tense.

When, very late, they were motoring home:

"Have you made up your mind?" Mathews asked her.

"Not yet," she said with a sigh that was half a sob. But she had lied to him for the first time in her life. She had made up her mind.

Time Changes

Peter let them in and told them that Mr. Travers and Miss Delight had not yet returned.

"I won't stay," Mathews told her. "You're dead tired. Sleep on it, Margaret, and do," he said again, "what you will know to be right."

He touched her hand and went back to the waiting car which would take him home, settling back in the corner, relaxed, a troubled and lonely man, feeling his age and his inadequacy to help the one person he loved above anything on earth in this emergency.

Margaret Lorrimer went up to bed, dismissed her waiting maid, undressed and lay between cool sheets in the Spring darkness, thinking, planning.

She was a mother. She was, therefore, where her son's vital happiness was concerned, an entirely unscrupulous woman. She would sacrifice anything and anybody to Travers Lorrimer's health and welfare. She was entirely convinced that, confronted with the truth, brought together again with the Delight Harford he had known and loved as a boy, the man he had become could never adjust himself, could never find happiness.

Many years had passed. Surely the woman she had seen on the stage tonight was a different person from the girl met on a London leave and loved with the desperate and tragic gayety and ardor of war time. The years must have brought many things to that girl, changes, alterations in circumstances; must have built up for her an entirely dissimilar background. She must now be as far apart from what she had been as the moon from the earth.

Besides, there was Mary Lou. Lorrimer loved her deeply, thinking her the lost Delight, but loved her surely in her own person and for herself. And it was perfectly obvious to Mrs. Lorrimer that Mary Lou, in her turn, was in love with Lorrimer. If this illusion of a marriage could be cleared up—and she had never believed in it herself—surely when Travers learned the truth, his love for Mary Lou would have put forth such roots that it would stand unshaken and he would forgive them all for the deception—would understand. A few months ago he couldn't have understood, in his condition of irritable nerves and unhappy memories. But he was a normal man now, clear thinking, sane, happy, healthy. Love, instead of narrowing his interests, had widened them. For no known interest in life he had substituted not only Mary Lou, but the normal interests of his sex, age, circumstances and personal likes—books, horses, the business of managing a great estate, friends—such as the gallant little Mac, waging his valiant battle with disease—flying, social contacts. He had been brought up to think not only of himself but of other people, other things.

Surely he would understand, now.

All-Important Question

There must be some way, Margaret thought, to find out from Delight if there had been a marriage. Perhaps this could be accomplished, possibly through Larry, without the woman's discovering anything. Larry had already made a friendly contact with her; he might ask her certain questions with careful casualness. And if, as Margaret believed and hoped, no such claim existed, she could wait until the girl was out of the country before confronting Lorrimer with the truth—or at least part of it.

The part she could tell him would be merely that Mary Lou was not the girl he had known; that, whatever his delusion on the subject, that girl had never been his wife. That the girl no longer, in a manner of speaking, existed; but that Mary Lou—did.

If, however, she thought rapidly and feverishly, if, by an unfortunate chance, Delight Hanford found out that Lorrimer was alive and realized toward what Larry's questionings were leading, perhaps she could be induced to leave New York. Money would do a lot and money would be provided.

"You'll do what's right," Dr Mathews had told her.

She sighed, turned on her pillows, ran her slim hands through the white disordered hair.

Even if he had not married this stranger, he had loved her. Boy's love, war-leave love, but one couldn't dismiss it so lightly perhaps. He'd learned suffering through it. Of course, she argued with herself, had he been quite normal on his return home he might soon have forgotten, the memory would have faded. It was his mental and physical condition which had caused him to cling to that memory as the one worth-while thing in life—the lost Delight.

Bad Food Is a Cause of Botulism

This Serious Disease Is Usually Traced to Food Improperly Preserved, Warns Authority

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.
U. S. Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

BOTULISM is a serious disease the result of food poisoning. It is caused by the presence of a dangerous germ in the food.

Dr. Copeland

Interest in botulism in the United States is stimulated by periodic outbreaks of this disease. In the cases recently reported, the infection has been traced to the consumption of home canned food.

At one time it was believed this disease could be caused only by eating infected meat. It has been proved that infected vegetables, particularly ripe olives, canned string beans, asparagus, corn, apricots, olives and cheese, may cause botulism.

Botulism is traced to food that has received inadequate treatment in the process of smoking, canning, or pickling. It is never caused by fresh food, or by food that is served after boiling.

Essential Precautions.

In home canning, the food is often a few days old when "put up." This gives time for the germs to multiply. Further, the temperature maintained in the home process is usually insufficient to destroy the germs of botulism. When these germs are not destroyed, the disease is sure to appear.

In preserving foodstuffs only fresh and clean food should be used. Heating is absolutely essential and should be kept at a temperature of 120 degrees for at least 10 minutes.

Canning is safe only when the contents of the can are actually sterilized. The cans should be airtight and boiled at a sufficiently high temperature to destroy all germs. This is often difficult to do at home. To be assured of safety, buy only commercially canned foods which are prepared under the most rigid precautions.

Cooking is not a sufficient precaution against food poisoning. Please remember that if allowed to stand, any food is well suited for bacterial growth. Place all cooked food in the icebox to avoid any contamination and germ growth.

In this matter, too, it is vital to know the refrigerator actually refrigerates. A temperature below 40 degrees is essential to safety.

Theaters

AT THE CLIFTONA

Dramatic, romantic and magnificent in color, especially in the sequences which are taken against the vast panoramas of the high Sierras, is "Woman Hungry," which is at the Cliftona Theatre. The picture which was photographed, under the direction of Clarence Badger, for First National, as an all-Technicolor drama, is the finest of this type of work yet seen.

The story of "Woman Hungry" is that of a man whose love comes as an afterthought to passion. The principal roles are taken by Sidney Blackmer and Lila Lee. Never has Miss Lee been seen to such advantage as in the Boston society girl who goes West in search of adventure.

Blackmer is distinctly a new type of hero. There is strength, sincerity and personal magnetism in his portrayal. He looks the part of the renegade of the early sequences and of the changed personality as the story progresses.

AT THE GRAND

"The Flood," Columbia's latest screen offering which is at the Grand Theatre, is a spectacular drama of broad, tremendous sweep. It has a clever blending of great human interest appeal and vivid action. In it one sees the mighty waters of the Mississippi unleashed in angry turbulence. Its locale is Riverside, a sleepy old town by a sluggish river. Hypocrisy, envy, jealousy, and greed, poisonous human emotions, smoulder and flame; and the great river, like the humans on its banks, becomes turbulent. Its swollen waters rise and crash through man-made barricades. The flood quenches the flame of scandal, and in a highly dramatic, surprising denouement, a small town girl finds love and happiness.

Lovely Eleanor Boardman plays the part of the heroine, with a finished artistry that proves her acting ability. Monte Blue, already famed for his able characterizations, surpasses himself in this picture. David Newell is a convincing villain.

THE COURT'S DELAY

NEW YORK.—Delays in connection with jury trials in courts here extend from 18 months to three years according to a report by the Institute of law of the John Hopkins Institute. According to the report it requires from 18 to 21 months to reach a case for trial by jury in supreme court, three years in the city court, and 13 months in the municipal court. Accidents and collection cases comprise approximately five-sixths of the litigation with no more than one-fifth of the cases ever being tried.

CO-OP STOCK REPORT GIVEN

Harry J. Briggs Reports 38 Decks Handled in County In July.

Manager Harry J. Briggs in presenting his monthly report of cooperative livestock shipments to the Board of Directors of the Pickaway Livestock Association asserted that in spite of a reduced livestock population, 38 decks of livestock were handled cooperatively during the month. This volume was comparised of 968 hogs; 208 fat cattle; 374 feeders; 133 calves and 472 sheep. Approximately 80 per cent of this volume was sold by the Association for the livestock producers direct to the packer.

In addition to the out going movement of livestock, the local association has purchased for its patrons seven cars of feeder cattle. These have been chiefly comprised of choice feeder calves which were calved this last spring, carrying an average weight of from 275 to 300 pounds, at a delivered cost to the farmer of from $7.09 to $7.35 per hundred. Good to choice short horns, averaging around 401 pounds were delivered at $5.88 and good to choice white faces, averaging 528 pounds delivered at $7.29 per hundred.

The common to medium kinds of cattle have been layed in to the farmer at a cost of from $4.50 to $5.90 per hundred. The type of cattle and the delivered cost in view of cheap feed indicate the possibilities of an economic income from careful beef cattle feeding operations.

Evolution of Gastronomy

SOBER minds have studied the young bridge players and discovered what is the matter with them. Their principal shortcoming lies in the fact that they have refused to take up the greatest of arts, of which the patron saint, according to Brillat-Savarin, is Gasterea.

Hence all the boredom and pessimism of the modern woman. Back to the gas range, is the cry of viewers-with-alarm. Out with the ready-made food. Put an end to cold snacks. Woo Gasterea and restore husbands and happiness to homes.

The gastronomical aesthetes link music with gastronomy, and compare a young goose, properly stuffed, roasted and served, with Bethoven's Symphony Eroica—to the latter's disadvantage. They conjure up the spirits of vanished omlettes ad they moan over the prevalence of eggs fried hard in heavy grease.

What would the Puritan fathers think of this modern hankering for the fleshpots? The days of salt pork and corn are long since gone. But as for American wives abondoning the art of cooking, or the entire country hungry for filet de catfish au grape juice blanc, followed by supreme de boeuf with pommes soufflees and haricots verts an natural—the choice of the Puritan fathers might be in favor of more bridge games.

But there seems to be conflicting opinions on this score Of late there has been no little evidence of a return to popularity of the abundant dinner table. Meals "not for a king" are said to be quite common in common American homes, and wifely descriptions of bridge luncheons make epicurean husbands green with envy.

Sometimes one suspects that complacent matrons, forgetful of their hard-biscuit and delicatessen days as young brides, are responsible for this libel on the modern housewife. Finished cooks and beginners are probably in the same ratio today as in grandmother's day.

Statistics on Success

BUSINESS men and college graduates have long felt the need of some method of advising young men about choice of a job. A common complaint is that graduates expects to step directly from the classroom to well-paid executive responsibility. Less murmuring is heard form the boys though they seem to have cause to charge bad management to somebody.

Young men hardly can be expected to make wise judgments for the future when they have no facts to go upon. The employer has the information, but it apparently has not occurred to him until recently that it might be sensible to give it to his prospective employes.

The college man is in need of concreate fact to show him the steps to his goal, the length of time he will probably have to spend in each position as he asends, and the amount of money he may expect to receive. All these facts are in the hands of every employer. He is able to tell the newcomer, in terms of persons who have already traveled the same path, details regarding the vocation he wishes to take up.

There is no light in the old, generalized advice to young men seeking a life work. The familiar vocational lecture, abounding in platitudes and applying equally to all kinds of jobs, is of no real help But if a young man is told that before he can make $20.000 a year as buyer in a department store he must be a stock boy, junior salesman, salesman, head of stock and assistant buyers, and if he sees that this has actually been done by many before him, he has information of practical value.

If a business can actually offer opportunities to young men and is in need of new blood, it would be to its advantage to make opportunities known.

ANOTHER EM7RGENCY CASE

"MAKE-BELIEVE" by FAITH BALDWIN

Copyright, 1930, by Faith Baldwin — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Travers Lorrimer, son of the wealthy Margaret Lorrimer, broods constantly for Delight Harford, whom he claims to have married in England during the war. No trace can be found of the girl, and when Travers mistakes Mary Lou Thurston, pretty, young orphan, for Delight, Mrs. Lorrimer induces Mary Lou to play the part. Travers is told he must win "Delight" all over again. In the months that follow, Travers is more attracted to "Delight" than ever. Mary Lou loves Travers and feels she cannot keep up the masquerade. Just as the crisis is reached, Larry Mitchell, Mary Lou's newspaper reporter friend, locates the real Delight acting in a revue. Mary Lou is stunned by the news. Mrs. Lorrimer comforts Mary Lou and plans to investigate. She attends the revue while Jenny Wynne, Larry's fiancee, gives a party to keep Travers from getting suspicious. Mary Lou sees her castle of dreams crumbling about her. In a moment of surrender, she permits Travers to kiss her. Meanwhile, Mrs. Lorrimer studies Delight at the theatre.

CHAPTER XLI.

THERE was a good comedian, and a leading woman who was pretty and graceful and charming, and who scored, obviously, a real personal triumph. There were plenty of good looking show girls and many specialty numbers, good, bad and indifferent. But it is probable that neither Mrs. Lorrimer nor Dr. Mathews could have given a coherent description of the piece or of anyone in it, save of the small, vivacious little person billed as Diana Hackett, and about whom rumors flew, from lipsticked mouth to lipsticked mouth, in the lobby, between acts, while tuxedoed gentlemen listened skeptically and critics smiled wearily.

"This Hackett woman . . . rather good looking, isn't she? They say her father's an earl or something."

"Diana Hackett? Lady Diana. I've heard She can't act, of course. . . ."

"Well, decent of her not to use the title, anyway!"

"She hasn't kept it a secret, though, one notices."

"Sweet are the uses of publicity!"

But she was only a very small part of the evening to the majority of the audience, and the entire evening to Margaret Lorrimer and her old friend.

The Comeback

Diana—the real Delight—was attractive behind the footlights The tired lines, the hard molding of her face, disappeared in the flattering glow; make-up concealed a great deal. She was, however, no actress. Still, she sang passably, she wore clothes—what there were of them—gracefully, and with authentic chic, and she did something she called dancing well enough She had personality, a gay friendliness toward her audience. And she worked hard. She had to work hard, poor creature, for this was her big chance, unexpectedly arrived at and seized with heaven knew what hope and relief, to make something of herself, to eat three meals a day for an indefinite time.

After the first act Mrs. Lorrimer spoke, very low, to Dr. Mathews. She had been tense as fine strung wire at the first appearance of the woman she had come to see and to judge. Now she relaxed a little.

"She's pretty—I can see the resemblance to—"

"Yes," he interrupted, "of course you can. So can I."

Mrs. Lorrimer was silent for a minute. Then she said:

"Dan, I don't know what to do!"

"You'll do what's right, what's best, Margaret," he told her, strongly.

"And that is?" she questioned.

He twisted his program in his hands.

"I can't presume to advise you," he replied, quietly. "You'll have to work this out for yourself. Take your time, think it over. You'll be sick and sorry all the rest of your life if you commit an injustice. But it is up to you, Margaret. Whatever you do, I'll stand by," he assured her, needlessly.

She smiled at him gratefully.

"Of course," she answered, "I know you will. But—oh, I wanted to see for myself. And now I have seen her, I know I can't judge her by just this business of sitting in an audience. Yet intuition is a strange thing. Dan. I'm perfectly convinced, sitting here, that—that he'd never be happy with her."

Mathews said, after a pause:

"You can't think of that now. You must find out how much of a claim she has on him. After all—if she is his wife—?"

The lights were lowered. The curtain went up and the play went on. Margaret watched it unseeingly save for those brief periods when the woman billed as Diana Hackett was on the stage. Then the brown eyes were keen and the slim, fine body tense.

When, very late, they were motoring home:

"Have you made up your mind?" Mathews asked her.

"Not yet," she said with a sigh that was half a sob. But she had lied to him for the first time in her life. She had made up her mind.

Time Changes

Peter let them in and told them that Mr. Travers and Miss Delight had not yet returned.

"I won't stay," Mathews told her. "You're dead tired. Sleep on it, Margaret, and do," he said again, "what you will know to be right."

He touched her hand and went back to the waiting car which would take him home, settling back in the corner, relaxed, a troubled and lonely man, feeling his age and his inadequacy to help the one person he loved above anything on earth in this emergency.

Margaret Lorrimer went up to bed, dismissed her waiting maid, undressed and lay between cool sheets in the soft darkness, thinking, planning.

She was a mother. She was, therefore, where her son's vital happiness was concerned, an entirely unscrupulous woman. She would sacrifice anything and anybody to Travers Lorrimer's health and welfare. She was entirely convinced that, confronted with the truth, brought together again with the Delight Harford he had known and loved as a boy, the man he had become could never adjust himself, could never find happiness

Many years had passed Surely the woman she had seen on the stage tonight was a different person from the girl met on a London leave and loved with the desperate and tragic gayety and ardor of war time. The years must have brought many things to that girl, changes, alterations in circumstances; must have built up for her an entirely dissimilar background. She must now be as far apart from what she had been as the moon from the earth.

Besides, there was Mary Lou. Lorrimer loved her deeply, thinking her the lost Delight, but loved her surely in her own person and for herself. And it was perfectly obvious to Mrs. Lorrimer that Mary Lou, in her turn, was in love with Lorrimer. If this illusion of a marriage could be cleared up—and she had never believed in it herself—surely when Travers learned the truth, his love for Mary Lou would have put forth such roots that it would stand unshaken and he would forgive them all for the deception—would understand. A few months ago he couldn't have understood, in his condition of irritable nerves and unhappy memories. But he was a normal man now, clear thinking, sane, happy, healthy. Love, instead of narrowing his interests, had widened them. For no known interest in life he had substituted not only Mary Lou, but the normal interests of his sex, age, circumstances and personal likes—books, horses, the business of managing a great estate, friends—such as the gallant little Mac, waging his valiant battle with disease—flying, social contacts. He had been brought up to think not only of himself but of other people, other things.

Surely he would understand, now.

All-Important Question

There must be some way, Margaret thought, to find out from Delight if there had been a marriage. Perhaps this could be accomplished, possibly through Larry, without the woman's discovering anything. Larry had already made a friendly contact with her; he might ask her certain questions with careful casualness. And if, as Margaret believed and hoped, no such claim existed, she could wait until the girl was out of the country before confronting Lorrimer with the truth—or at least part of it.

The part she could tell him would be merely that Mary Lou was not the girl he had known; that, whatever his delusion on the subject, that girl had never been his wife. That the girl no longer, in a manner of speaking, existed; but that Mary Lou—did.

If, however, she thought rapidly and feverishly, if, by an unfortunate chance, Delight Hanford found out that Lorrimer was alive and realized toward what Larry's questionings were leading, perhaps she could be induced to leave New York. Money would do a lot and money would be provided.

"You'll do what's right," Dr Mathews had told her.

She sighed, turned on her pillows, ran her slim hands through the white disordered hair.

Even if he had not married this stranger, he had loved her Boy's love, war-leave love, but one couldn't dismiss it so lightly, perhaps. He'd learned suffering through it. Of course, she argued with herself, had he been quite normal on his return home he might soon have forgotten, the memory would have faded. It was his mental and physical condition which had caused him to cling to that memory as the one worth-while thing in life—the lost Delight.

Bad Food Is a Cause of Botulism

This Serious Disease Is Usually Traced to Food Improperly Preserved, Warns Authority

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.
U. S. Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

BOTULISM is a serious disease the result of food poisoning. It is caused by the presence of a dangerous germ in the food.

Dr. Copeland

Interest in botulism in the United States is stimulated by periodic outbreaks of this disease. In the cases recently reported, the infection has been traced to the consumption of home canned food.

At one time it was believed this disease could be caused only by eating infected meat. It has been proved that infected vegetables, particularly ripe olives, canned string beans, asparagus, corn, apricots, olives and cheese, may cause botulism

Botulism is traced to food that has received inadequate treatment in the process of smoking, canning, or pickling. It is never caused by fresh food, or by food that is served after boiling.

Essential Precautions.

In home canning, the food is often a few days old when "put up." This gives time for the germs to multiply Further, the temperature maintained in the home process is usually insufficient to destroy the germs of botulism. When these germs are not destroyed, the disease is sure to appear

In preserving foodstuffs only fresh and clean food should be used Heating is absolutely essential and should be kept at a temperature of 120 degrees for at least 10 minutes

Canning is safe only when the contents of the can are actually sterilized The cans should be airtight and boiled at a sufficiently high temperature to destroy all germs This is often difficult to do at home. To be assured of safety, buy only commercially canned foods which are prepared under the most rigid precautions

Cooking is not a sufficient precaution against food poisoning. Please remember that if allowed to stand any food is well suited for bacterial growth Place all cooked food in the icebox to avoid any contamination and germ growth

In this matter too it is vital to know the refrigerator actually refrigerates A temperature below 40 degrees is essential to safety

AT THE CLIFTONA

Dramatic, romantic and magnificent in color, especially in the sequences which are taken against the vast panoramas of the high Sierras, is "Woman Hungry," which is at the Cliftona Theatre. The picture which was photographed, under the direction of Clarence Badger, for First National, as an all-Technicolor drama, is the finest of this type of work yet seen.

The story of "Woman Hungry" is that of a man whose love comes as an afterthought to passion The principal roles are taken by Sidney Blackmer and Lila Lee. Never has Miss Lee been seen to such advantage as in the Boston society girl who goes West in search of adventure.

Blackmer is distinctly a new type of hero. There is strength, sincerity and personal magnetism in his portrayal. He looks the part of the renegade of the early sequences and of the changed personality as the story progresses.

AT THE GRAND

"The Flood," Columbia's latest screen offering which is at the Grand Theatre, is a spectacular drama of broad, tremendous sweep. It has a clever blending of great human interest appeal and vivid action. In it one sees the mighty waters of the Mississippi unleashed in angry turbulence Its locale is Riverside, a sleepy old town by a sluggish river. Hypocrisy, envy, jealousy, and greed, poisonous human emotions, smoulder and flame; and the great river, like the humans on its banks, becomes turbulent. Its swollen waters rise and crash through man-made barricades. The flood quenches the flame of scandal, and in a highly dramatic surprising denouement, a small town girl finds love and happiness.

THE COURT'S DELAY

NEW YORK —Delays in connection with jury trials in courts here extend from 18 months to three years according to a report by the Institute of law of the John Hopkins Institute According to the report it requires from 18 to 21 months to reach a case for trial by jury in supreme court, three years in the city court, and 13 months in the municipal court. Accidents and collection cases comprise approximately five-sixths of the litigation with no more than one-fifth of the cases ever being tried.

CO-OP STOCK REPORT GIVEN

Harry J. Briggs Reports 38 Decks Handled in County In July.

Manager Harry J. Briggs in presenting his monthly report of cooperative livestock shipments to the Board of Directors of the Pickaway Livestock Association asserted that in spite of a reduced livestock population, 38 decks of livestock were handled cooperatively during the month. This volume was comparised of 968 hogs; 208 fat cattle, 374 feeders; 133 calves and 472 sheep. Approximately 89 per cent of this volume was sold by the Association for the livestock producers direct to the packer.

In addition to the out going movement of livestock, the local association has purchased for its patrons seven cars of feeder cattle. These have been chiefly comprised of choice feeder calves which were calved this last spring, carrying an average weight of from 275 to 300 pounds, at a delivered cost to the farmer of from $7 09 to $7.35 per hundred. Good to choice short horns, averaging around 401 pounds were delivered at $5.88 and good to choice white faces, averaging 528 pounds delivered at $7.29 per hundred.

The common to medium kinds of cattle have been layed in to the farmer at a cost of from $4.50 to $5 90 per hundred. The type of cattle and the delivered cost in view of cheap feed indicate the possibilities of an economic income from careful beef cattle feeding operations.

Cash Value of Husbands

AN estimable Roman matron by the name of Cornelia has been noted in history for having pointed to her son and remarked; "There are my jewels." What she thought, if anything, of Mr. Gracchus, father of the boys, history fails to record. Yet the Gracchus family moved in the best of Roman social circles and somebody had to pay the bills.

Cornelia's attitude has been shared by wives since the beginning of the marriage custom, more startling illustration of woman's lack of business acumen could be found than her failure to discover in her husband a cash asset.

If you stop to consider it, every man who works at all may be regarded by his wife as so much capital. If he is making $30 a week his cash value is $78,000 plus interest if he lives to his fiftieth wedding anniversary. Even the parson and professor laboring for a mere $3000 a year, when viewed in this light, constitute a surprisingly important investment. In other words, a husband is the physical embodiment of his earning capacity.

Women, ordinarily, is not careless of her possessions. She keeps her jewels in a strong box and her furs and finery in a cedar chest. Such tangible assets as sewing machines, washing machines, lawnmowers and other domestic appliances she guards with a scrupulous care. Yet she permits the highest priced machine in the house to work overtime without the least consideration for wear and tear. Of course she keeps friends husband locked up at night, thereby breaking the cardinal principle of economics, that capital should be kept in circulation.

What a happy world this would be for husbands if wives could be made to understand that when they send their husbands into the cellar to tend the furnace they are risking the loss of an investment of some thousands of dollars.

LEGISLATORS NOT ELIGIBLE

In an opinion to Governor George White, Attorney General Gilbert Bettman has held that a member of the General Assembly is not eligible to reappointment on the board of parole.

General Bettman also held that a member of the General Assembly may lawfully be appointed on the board created to make a survey of the waterways of the state, and may, at the same time, hold his seat in the General Assembly providing it is determined by the Governor that no compensation other than expenses be fixed for the members of said commission. If, however, it is determined by the Governor that compensation other than expenses be fixed for the members of said commission, a member of the General Assembly who is appointed to and accepts membership on this commission must, forthwith, resign his seat in the General Assembly, General Bettman held.
